Peace Restored In Queen's Party

Truce Has Been Effected Between Washburn and Hill Following Quarrel—May Decide Upon Florida Trip Later.

Queen Marie's train en route to Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 5 (AP).—Queen Marie's special train moved toward Vancouver today with a truce, having outwardly closed the breach among the controlling parties aboard.

Major Stanley Washburn, special aide to her Majesty, Samuel Hill, eccentric millionaire who induced Marie to come from Rumania to dedicate his unfinished museum of Fine Arts at Maryhill, Washington, were aboard the train despite Hill's announced intention to put the major off. Major Washburn will remain with the party at the request of Colonel John H. Carroll, official host to the queen, who, with Washburn, left Marie's box at the Portland horse show Wednesday night after Mr. Hill had publicly criticized the special aide.

Threatened to Slap Major.

Threatening to slap Major Washburn and to "crush him" if the aide disobeyed his orders, Hill had declared he was "boss" of the tour. Washburn and Carroll immediately excused themselves to the queen and returned to the train.

In a statement last night Colonel Carroll, who has effected a truce between Washburn and Hill, declared he was "very much surprised that a guest of the queen" should threaten to put the major off the train, adding that Major Washburn was selected by Marie herself because of his assistance to her during the war.

Another Peace Portal.

Another edifice built by Mr. Hill awaited Marie's inspection today at Blaine—the peace portal commemorating a century of peace between the United States and Canada. Afterward she will visit Vancouver.

Returning tomorrow the party will pass through Blaine, Seattle, and Spokane before continuing to Glacier National Park, Montana, and thence by a zig-zag course to Washington, D. C., terminus of the tour. A Florida trip may be decided upon later.

Licenses Revoked And Suspended

Albany, Nov. 5.—Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motor vehicles, revoked or suspended 790 certificates of automobile registration and drivers' licenses during the sixteen days ended October 30. The revocations include 80 for failure to file omnibus bonds and lapsation of insurance. The names of those involved in these cases are not published. There were 65 revocations and 322 suspensions in New York and vicinity and 83 revocations and 240 suspensions in other parts of the state.

The revocations and suspensions in Ulster county were as follows:

Revocations: Hilles Fairbain of Seager and Judson Van Vlicht of New Paltz, for driving car while intoxicated.

Suspensions: Theodore R. Whitaker of Mount Marion, for allowing unlicensed operator to drive; Alfred Entrott of 128 Abeel street, Kingston, Carl W. Gill of 292 East Chester street, Kingston, and Catherine K. Ryan of 132 Prospect street Kingston, charged with reckless driving.

Brunner Deaths Agitate British

London, Nov. 5 (AP).—The deaths by bullet wounds of Roscoe Brunner, once chairman of a great alkali concern, and his wife continue to agitate the people of London.

Both in big business circles and the social world the idea prevails, that after a quarrel between the couple over Mrs. Brunner's alleged inquisitiveness regarding his business affairs and his objections to her expenditures for clothes and her amusements, Mr. Brunner shot his wife and then killed himself.

This theory is said to have been indicated by the position of the bodies when found and the fact that Mr. Brunner's right hand grasped a revolver.

The coroner's inquest will be held Monday.

Aged Man Injured by Fall.

Charles McNally of Saugerties, 70 years of age, fell from his pile driver at Hudson Thursday morning and received two broken ribs. McNally, who has been in the pile driving business for a number of years, is well known on the river. His two sons are now supervising the work formerly carried on by their father and when one of the boys left the scene of work for a short time on Thursday morning the aged man climbed up the rigging on the boat and fell into the ferry slip, striking his side against the piles. He was taken to the Hudson City Hospital where his injuries were pronounced painful but not serious.

A Children Pie Supper.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Church of the Comforter will serve a chicken pie supper in Comforter Hall on Tuesday evening, November 9, from 5 o'clock until 8. Mrs. Bailey will be the caterer. The public is invited.

Poultney Bigelow Talks to D. A. R.

Wiltwyck Chapter Hears Interesting Talk on "America and France of a Hundred Years"—Culture of Olden Days Recalled.

A large attendance at the November meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., on Thursday afternoon showed the interest aroused by the announcement that the speaker for the day would be Poultney Bigelow of Malden-on-Hudson.

Following the routine business, presided over, as was the entire meeting, by the regent, Mrs. T. D. Lewis, three new members were received, Mrs. Margaret Conklin, Mrs. Clarence Fromer and Mrs. Trego Byrd, formerly of Blackfoot, Idaho.

In the report of the Americanization committee it was stated that twenty-five naturalization papers had been prepared and the night school had been visited.

The regent asked all members of Wiltwyck Chapter who could trace their ancestors to Valley Forge to send in their names, following a request from the National D. A. R.

Graciously welcoming the distinguished speaker of the afternoon, Poultney Bigelow, Mrs. Lewis presented Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck as one who would introduce the speaker. Judge Hasbrouck reminded those present that Ulster county had produced several distinguished literary men, John Burroughs, Richard Le Gallienne, John Bigelow, who was also minister plenipotentiary to France. Like father, like son, said Judge Hasbrouck, as he rehearsed the courage and sense of national responsibility of the speaker of the afternoon, especially as shown in his two latest works, "Genseric," and "Prussianism and Vandalism."

Mr. Bigelow's Talk.

Mr. Bigelow, who spoke on "America and France of a Hundred Years," was of the opinion that while we may be progressing along the line of modern inventions, we have not the culture of our ancestors whom we consider old fashioned. Today we have no time to seriously study history—we think and say—yet the same amount of time devoted to skimming modern periodicals, would suffice to give us a real, working knowledge of history.

The time of Lafayette, Mr. Bigelow considered the golden age of letters. Then we were more civilized in the elegancies of life than we are today with all of our hurry and rush. Those were the days of Cooper, Thoreau, Poe, Hawthorn, Irving, Emerson, and the historians Bancroft and Prescott, not forgetting Franklin. The speaker called wit like Franklin's that will last to the end of the world, true genius.

The sale of a million copies of Noah Webster's Spelling book did more to standarize the English language than did any other factor. In America, English was read and written universally, but in England there were many dialects and English literature was better and more generally read here than in England.

France drove out a million Huguenots to England and England drove them on to America. Always a people who leave a country because of religious principles are more worth while than those who stay behind.

Cooper with his historic background was greatly admired in France and the French considered his Deerslayer a work of original creation. To France also belongs the credit of discovering Cooper's Sea Stories, which the speaker considered literary gems. A man of the world, though recognized by France, Cooper was despised by England who could not understand us or him.

The Hudson Valley Writers.

Again mentioning the Boston group of authors, Mr. Bigelow said that no American authors seized on the imaginations of European critics as did the Hudson valley writers, especially Poe, of whom the lecturer spoke at length and most interestingly.

In summing up, Mr. Bigelow considered that we were on a higher plane of civilization then than now, when thoughtful critics of the Old World admired and recognized our literary ability, and "that we then produced a bouquet of literary flowers is significant." "Great movements go in waves."

Since he was in the attitude of a prophet in his own country, Mr. Bigelow heartily expressed his appreciation of the large and inspiring audience that had dared to venture forth to hear one of their own address them.

The afternoon closed with a social hour and the serving of refreshments, Mrs. Charles Terwilliger and Mrs. William C. Kingman being the hostesses.

STORES AT SESQUI TO CLOSE ON SUNDAY

Philadelphia, Nov. 5 (AP).—All buildings at the Sesquicentennial Exposition in which merchandise is sold will be closed on Sundays, the directors announced today.

The action was taken to assure the strict enforcement of the state supreme court's ruling against Sunday sales. The amusements on the Gladway also will be closed on the Sabbath.

Buildings remaining open include the palace of fine arts, palace of transportation and government exhibits, palace of education, all foreign buildings with the exception of the India building and all state buildings with the exception of the Pennsylvania building, which has always been closed on Sunday.

Corner Stone of St. John's Church

Order of Service at Laying of Corner Stone of Reconstructed Church on Albany Avenue Site Saturday Afternoon.

The following will be the order of service for the laying of the corner stone of St. John's Episcopal Church on Albany avenue on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

Processional Hymn, No. 464, "The Church's One Foundation."

Prayers by Bishop Manning.

Scripture Lesson, Corinthians, III, 6-12.

Laying of the Corner Stone, with Prayers.

Hymn, No. 512, "For Thee, O dear, dear Country."

Address by Bishop Manning.

Closing Prayer and Benediction.

Recessional Hymn, No. 457, "Christ is made the sure foundation."

The public is cordially invited to attend this service. All visiting clergy are asked to meet at the temporary quarters of the church, corner of Tremper and Albany avenues, at 3.30 o'clock, there to robe, and join the processional to the new church site on Albany avenue.

Landmark For Many Years.

Having stood in the heart of the business section of Kingston for nearly one hundred years, with its spire symbolically pointing to higher things than its material surroundings, St. John's Church has been a land-mark in the community, and its passing to more commodious scenes has caused much sorrow as well as much rejoicing.

During the summer of 1926 it was deemed wise by the rector, the Rev. E. M. H. Knapp, and the wardens and vestrymen—Thomas A. Horton, Harold F. King, C. V. A. Decker, E. Hoyt Green, Walter S. Babcock, Charles A. Lasher, Judson Whitbeck, Winfred D. Hubbard and George N. Wood—to sell the church site to Frank Forman of Kingston for the sum of $110,000 and remove the buildings and reconstruct them on property at 209 Albany avenue, which was purchased from Mrs. Williams Carter, a communicant of the church.

Much of the detail work of the negotiations was in the hands of the then rector, Mr. Knapp, who died recently leaving the anticipated completion of the ardous but to him happy task, to another. Mr. Knapp became rector of St. John's Church on March 15, 1922, having formerly been vicar of the Church of the Incarnation, New York city, and rector of St. Mark's Church, Augusta, Maine, from which church he was called to Kingston.

Local Rotarians At Haverstraw

A party of six Kingston Rotarians attended the charter presentation dinner of the new Haverstraw Rotary Club Thursday evening and had a wonderful time. The dinner was in the magnificent new Elks Club. The toastmaster was District Governor The Rev. Otto L. F. Mohn and among the speakers was Fred Van Amburg and Ray Knoeppel of New York and James Garrity of Yonkers.

District Governor Mohn, in the course of a brief outline of what Rotary stands for and aims for said: "We have ideals that we strive for although we do not expect to attain them fully. We believe that example is more forceful than precept and that the individual example counts most. We are not a total abstinance society nor a prohibition club, but we seek to induce men as individuals to develop and exercise self restraint."

The Kingston party was shepherded by Merton Goldrick, who had in his charge Emil Boessneck, Ernest Hicks, John Porter, Louis S. Coe and A. W. Hoffman.

PLACE BAN ON OXFORD BAGS AND "PLUS FOURS"

Oxford, England, Nov. 5 (AP)—Oxford bags, once the rage among the young men here, have been ordered into the discard. In the movement toward reform even "plus fours" are not to be permitted in the dining halls.

Notices read:

"Gentlemen are reminded that they are not allowed to dine in this hall wearing what are vulgarly known as 'plus fours', 'Oxford bags' or any other unseemly or improper article of dress."

Attached is a warning that college servants have orders not only not to serve but to ignore undergraduates who are thus attired. This means, as the students see it, that the college servant becomes the discriminator and adjudicator and if improper dress is worn "we students have to go without our eats."

Fell On Crosswalk.

It was reported to the police department Thursday that Katherine Houck of 47 Broadway had fallen on the crosswalk at Greenkill avenue and Broadway and had been conveyed to the Kingston City Hospital by Joseph Disch of 22 Abbey street. Later she returned to her home.

Oyster Supper at Wittenberg.

The W. W. Society of the Wittenberg Church will serve an oyster supper in the church hall on Tuesday, November 16, from 5 o'clock until all are served.

Probing Sale of Rum to Students

Following Drinking Parties at University of Illinois, Where Twelve Students Were Expelled—Council Intends to Force Rules.

Chicago, Nov. 5 (AP).—After announcement that 12 University of Illinois students had been expelled for drinking, gambling and using automobiles, a story was published today by the Herald and Examiner that federal prohibition agents were investigating the sale of liquor to students at a number of colleges in Chicago territory.

Prohibition officials declined to discuss the subject, but the newspaper said women dry agents were reported working under cover at the University of Wisconsin at Madison, that a prohibition agent had departed to investigate drinking at an unnamed Indiana college.

Twelve men students were expelled from the Illinois institution on Wednesday, 10 of them for drinking incident to football games at Urbana and Ann Arbor, Michigan, and last night a co-ed was dismissed for remaining out after hours.

At the time of the first action, Dean Thomas Arkle Clark, secretary of the council of administration, said the council intends to curb drinking, gambling and the use of automobiles by students and intends to deal seriously with all violators of university rules.

INTEREST INCREASING IN EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS

The evangelistic meetings being held at Wurts Street Baptist Church by the Rev. Howard Strathearn and wife of Rochester are increasing in interest and attendance each evening. The topic for tonight will be "Big Business" and a mighty interesting sermon is assured. The singing of Mrs. Strathearn is a most enjoyable part of the services and on Saturday night a sacred musical concert will be given. Meetings begin each evening at 7:45 with a song service.

U. S. MARSHAL SOLD BARGE TO W. J. DWYER

The barge Robert Hughes, berthed in the Rondout creek at the Lenehan boatyard, was sold at a United States Marshal sale this afternoon at 1 o'clock and was bid in by William J. Dwyer for a price said to be about $6,000. The boat was sold to settle the bankrupt estate of a Mr. Hughes, a New York city boatman.

DOCTOR DROPS DEAD AFTER HUMOROUS SPEECH

Manchester, England, Nov. 5 (AP)—Dr. W. E. Fothergill, noted gynecologist, dropped dead last night after a humorous speech delivered at the university banquet. His last words were:

"I have enjoyed tonight one of the best dinners I can remember."

WORK STARTED ON SAUGERTIES EXCHANGE

Work was started today on the construction of the Saugerties telephone exchange building at Saugerties. Frank S. Campbell, general contractor of this city, has the contract.

William H. Wilber of West Hurley has been appointed a notary public in and for the county of Ulster for the term ending March 30, 1929, by Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Harp at Park Lunch.

William Harp, Jr., has taken over the Park Lunch at 746 Broadway. He will make a specialty of home made pies, cake and puddings and specially prepared dinners.

College Students Act Like Thugs

Six Hundred Students of Massachusetts Institute Break Loose, Wrecking Automobiles, Trolleys and Damaging Theatre, Subway Station and Ballroom.

Boston, Nov. 5 (AP).—Five students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will appear in court here today on charges of malicious destruction of property during one of the most sensational collegiate riots ever waged in this city.

The riot, which finally assumed the proportions of a serious battle with the police reserves during which several thousands of dollars worth of property was destroyed, started when 400 freshmen attempted to break up the annual sophomore banquet with tear gas bombs.

The banquet was being held at the hangar gymnasium of the institute. The freshmen demanded admittance and were refused. Bombs were then hurled through broken windows and the upper classmen came out to battle the freshmen.

Leave Line of Wreckage.

After a few minutes of fighting an armistice was declared and the mob, 600 strong, started up Massachusetts avenue for Harvard Square. Automobiles were wrecked on the way and trolley cars were stopped, their windows broken and wires cut. The University Theatre in the square was stormed as well as the police station.

The students then "crashed the gate" of the subway and took possession of a two-car train, riding into Boston free of charge. Car windows were pulled out, electric lights broken and fire extinguishers emptied.

$2,000 Damage to Ballroom.

In Boston the rioters blocked traffic at Tremont and Boylston streets by stopping automobiles, tearing off their number plates and doing other damage. Chased from that section by police reserves they went to a public ballroom and damaged its furnishings to the extent of $2,000, according to the management.

From here police reserves herded the students into a subway station but this move proved costly—to the company—for nearly every window in the structure above the surface was broken. The reserves then drove the mob down Massachusetts avenue to the bridge and succeded in moving the collegians back to their native shores—the north bank of the Charles.

Long Discharged On Theft Charge

Cleveland Man Had Railroad Avenue Tailor Arrested on Theft Charge, But After Hearing in Police Court Long Was Discharged.

Joseph Magyar of Cleveland, Ohio, came to Kingston on Thursday and lost his roll of $80 while in Cuneo's place on Broadway, and claiming that Robert Long, a Railroad avenue tailor, had stolen his pocketbook containing the money, Magyar swore out a warrant for Long's arrest.

Long was arrested Thursday afternoon by Officer Bowser on the warrant and spent the night in the county jail. This morning after a hearing before Judge Shufeldt in police court Long was discharged because Magyar was unable to corrobrate his own story. Long denied taking the money, and the empty pocketbook was found later in the labratory.

Hendricks Arrested.

Kenneth Hendricks of 119 Downs street was arrested Thursday by Officer Van Buren on a charge of operating an automobile without having in his possession a chauffeur's or operator's license. This morning in police court Judge Shufeldt suspended sentence.

KINGSTON STUDENTS IN "ASSORTED NUTS" CAST

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 4.—H. B. Proper of Kingston, N. Y., a sophomore in the school of mechanical engineering of Purdue University, has been chosen as one of the leads in the cast of "Assorted Nuts", the All-Men's Revue of the institution, which will be presented in Lafayette November 18, 19 and 20, the last date being the same as the Purdue-Indiana football game. The chorus of 70 men was chosen from several hundred applicants, and is regarded by Coach R. G. Siegfried as the best he has ever handled. There are 50 men in the cast of the show, which has sixteen song numbers. Over $3,000 is being spent in costuming for the three performances and special scenery is being prepared for the show.

Snowfall Early Today.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock this morning there was quite a heavy flurry of snow in Kingston which was followed by rain. Later in the morning the sun emerged from behind the clouds and it promised to be a clear day but at noon the sun again became submerged in the clouds and about 12:30 o'clock this afternoon rain began falling again. The weather was sharp and cold throughout the day.

Luther League Rally.

There will be a Luther League rally of the Rhinebeck District this evening at the Spring Street Lutheran Church at 8 o'clock.

Award $89,870 To Grant Co.

Tri-County Light & Power Company, Owned by Judge Grant of Stamford, Awarded Damages by Appraisal Commissioners.

The Gilboa reservoir and Shandaken tunnel commission, consisting of the Hon John P. Taylor of Troy, Senator Arthur F. Bouton of Roxbury, Delaware county, and Frank L. Briarly of New York city, appointed to hear and determine the case of the Tri-County Light & Power Company, owned by Judge John P. Grant of Stamford, N. Y., have filed their report by which they award to the company the sum of $89,870. The award draws interest at 6 per cent until paid.

This is the second trial of this cause. It was first tried before a commission consisting of Joseph D Kelly of New York city, Claude B. Mayham of Schoharie, and Patrick J. Shea of Troy. The award made by the first commission was set aside by Judge Howard upon the ground that the commission had proceeded upon an erroneous theory and Judge Howard appointed the present commission.

Both trials went into the matter of the diversion of the Schoharie river and the resultant effect most exhaustively. A number of the most expert hydraulic engineers in the country testified in the case. The proof showed that the company had an important plant, developing electric energy from the fall of the water of the Schoharie river near Gilboa, that it provided electric current to the villages of Gilboa, Grand Gorge, Stamford, Roxbury and vicinity, and that owing to its control of one of the most advantageous sites the whole length of the river, the city of New York had selected the place occupied by it as the most suitable location for the erection of a great dam to divert the waters of the river through a tunnel and thus into the Ashokan reservoir and from there to the city of New York.

The city has been represented by the city in 1917. The dam and tunnel have been completed, and the city long has been using the water. Judge Grant hopes, if Providence favors him, to survive long enough to be paid for the property taken from him for the benefit of New York city. In the meantime it is claimed on his behalf that properties of this character have increased in value, but unfortunately he was limited to its value in 1917, and that notwithstanding nine years have elapsed since then, he has not received a penny of compensation.

The city has been represented by different corporation counsels, although all the active work has been performed by William H. Grogan, who for years has represented the city in this litigation. Judge A. T. Clearwater and H. H. Flemming have represented Judge Grant and his corporation.

PRINCE LEOPOLD AND PRINCESS ASTRID WED

Stockholm, Nov. 5 (AP).—United in marriage by a civil ceremony, Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium and Princess Astrid of Sweden have started for Brussels where next Wednesday the religious ceremony will be performed. The newly-weds are proceeding to Belgium by different routes. Prince Leopold, after the gala dinner given by King Gustav last night, left with King Albert and Queen Elizabeth for Gothenburg, whence they will sail for Antwerp tomorrow morning.

Princess Astrid, accompanied by her mother, the Duchess of Vastergotland, left for Malmoe. She also will sail Saturday for Antwerp. At the railway station the young couple said tender good byes as they parted to meet again in Belgium.

After the dinner at the palace, Leopold and Astrid entered a carriage drawn by four horses and were driven with a military escort to the home of the bride's father and then about the town, which was beautifully illuminated and filled with crowds of singing and cheering people.

The religious ceremony in Brussels will be Roman Catholic. The Crown Prince is a communicant in that faith. Princess Astrid is a Lutheran. A special dispensation was given by the Pope for this marriage.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

At the Auditorium Theatre "The Great K & A Train Robbery", featuring Tom Mix, will be the main attraction.

At Reade's Kingston Theatre "Man Trap" will be the feature attraction.

The Orpheum Theatre will offer several acts of vaudeville and the photoplay, "The Mansion of Aching Hearts."

Hunter Shot by Companion.

Elmer Olsen, who conducts the Solway House at Centerville, was accidentally shot in the leg by Roy Van Wierden of the same place while hunting on Wednesday morning. The two men were members of a party who were hunting rabbits and Mr. Olsen was hidden from view in a clump of thick brush when the shot was fired by Van Wierden. The full charge entered the leg of the man and when he was removed to his home he was [illegible] Dr. S. W. Gifford of Stottville.

Drive Opened To Unseat Vare

Committee Prepares for Probe in Precincts Where Wilson Was Not Credited With a Single Vote—Lineup of House and Senate.

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP)—The drive against seating William S. Vare, Republican, as the junior senator from Pennsylvania in the Seventieth Congress has opened.

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, who spoke in Pennsylvania on behalf of William B. Wilson, the Democratic senatorial candidate, because of alleged excessive campaign expenditures by the Republicans, declared here that Senator Vare, although technically elected, had been repudiated by the "honest patriotic people" of the state and that the Philadelphia "machine" had functioned as usual, the results in some precincts having been announced before any votes were cast.

Meanwhile the committee of seventy, an unofficial body in Philadelphia, was preparing to make an investigation in a number of Philadelphia precincts where Mr. Wilson was not credited with a single vote. Members of the committee attached much importance to official returns which credit Wilson with no votes in 44 districts in that city and with only one vote in each of a number of other divisions.

Discussion of the Pennsylvania situation is expected to be renewed here Wednesday when the senate reconvenes as a court of impeachment to try George W. English, federal judge for the eastern district of Illinois, on charges of usurpation of power and other high misdemeanors. In view of Judge English's resignation yesterday it is believed that the senate session will be only perfunctory.

Returns overnight failed to change the party lineup in the Seventieth House, which remains Republicans 236, Democrats 195, Farm Labors 2, Socialist 1, and undecided 1. A total of 218 is necessary for a majority. The senate will show 4 Republicans, 47 Democrats, and one Farmer Labor, with one vacancy from Maine to be filled at a special election on November 29.

Consider Millar Will a Joke

Toronto, Nov. 5 (AP).—The will of Charles Vance Millar, lawyer and sportsman, in which he left brewery stock to Methodist ministers and Ontario Jockey Club shares to persons opposed to horse racing, is regarded by his friends as having been drawn up as a joke, with the intention of later superseding it.

The documents dispose of an estate estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. It provides that the proceeds of the estate after nine years be given to parents of the largest family born in the province during that time. Mrs. Millar died last Saturday.

Some friends who consider the will as a joke express the belief that it will be nullified by a later document.

Ontario Jockey Club shares valued at $25,000 are left to W. E. Raney, former attorney-general of Ontario, the Rev. Ben Spence of the Prohibition Union, and N. W. Rowell, King's counsel, all of whom are opposed to horse racing. These beneficiaries must hold the shares for three years and draw dividends.

O'Keefe Beverage stock worth $750,000 is left to seven Methodist ministers. To retain the stock they must draw dividends on it and vote in the management of the company.

Dancing Features At Victory Ball

The entertainment committee of the American Legion Victory Ball which will be held at the Armory on Armistice Night, Thursday, November 11, at which the famous Ipana Troubadours of New York will furnish dance music, has announced that one of the headliners on the concert from 8 to 9 o'clock will be Vincent Van Bramer and Helen Cashin in new and original numbers never before danced in public. Among the numbers these two versatile artists will dance are an entirely new tango waltz and an exhibition of whirlwind ball room dancing. Mr. Van Bramer announced that these numbers are absolutely original and entirely new.

Those who have been fortunate enough to have seen this talented couple dance in the past pronounce their performance worthy of comparison with the best metropolitan dancing teams. Their numbers at the Victory Ball will be more astonishingly clever than ever before.

Wherever Van Bramer and Cashin dance will always be found throngs of enthusiastic admirers. The Victory Ball will be no exception. You surely will not want to miss the sensation of watching these artists dance. You will get a real thrill if you like artistic, ballroom dancing. So be sure to be at the Victory Ball early, not later than 8 o'clock, so that you will be able to enjoy the entire concert. Van Bramer and Cashin will be but the centerpiece of [illegible]

GIRL HEALTH CHAMPION TO TRY FOR NATIONAL HONORS

Alberta Hoppe Took First Place at Iowa Fair and at the Sioux City Interstate Fair.

Chicago.—Alberta Hoppe, age fifteen years and ten months, who received a score of 98.9 per cent, was adjudged to be Iowa's healthiest 4-H club girl in a state-wide contest at the recent Iowa state fair. Girls representing 73 counties competed.

A few weeks later she was declared champion health girl at the Sioux City interstate fair in a field of 4-H club entrants from the states of Ohio, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana. In this regional contest she scored 99.5 per cent perfect, being faulted only for a little irregularity of teeth and a little weakness in the arch of her foot. The latter is now being corrected through exercises in preparation for the National Health contest in which she will be entered at the National Club congress to be held in Chicago, November 27 to December 4, in connection with the International Live Stock exposition. There Alberta will meet the healthiest club girls from all parts of the country for national honors, each state being represented by its champion health girl. A similar contest for club boys will also be conducted at the same time.

Josephine Arnquist, state leader of girls' club work in Iowa, says: "Alberta, who is a farm girl from Linn county, is a splendid example of a club girl living up to the standards of all-around development of head, heart, hand and health for which 4-H club work stands.

"Alberta is a girl who lives up to the rules of the health game. She has been a 4-H club girl for four years—where health is emphasized in some way at all regular club meetings.

"Swimming is her favorite sport, although she is fond of all gymnastic work including folk dancing, volley ball and indoor baseball. She likes outdoor life.

"Alberta is a sophomore in high school. In her freshman year she averaged about 96 and ranked second in her class. This shows how a good body is the basis on which to build a good mind and a good disposition. She is an example of a rather recently established fact that school children showing the best physical development make the best progress in school.

Austrian Trains Field Birds to Talk and Sing

Bayersdorf, Austria.—In Austria the starlings and nutcrackers talk and sing, that is, all those who go to school to Mitzi Hofer.

Fraulein Hofer has been teaching these two varieties of birds to talk and sing for the last twenty years. And, so successful has she been, that customers flock from all parts of Europe to visit her cottage, and to buy her birds.

She believes that the ability to sing and talk is strengthened through inheritance. Consequently she breeds her birds with the greatest care and has developed strains of nutcrackers and starlings which are not equaled as singers and talkers in all Europe.

The starlings and nutcrackers go to school each morning, not just hit or miss, but in classes. The birds sit on her head, on her shoulders, in her lap and as she trills and talks to them, it spurs them on to imitative effort.

Hedges Discloses

New York.—The charleston and its latest version, the black bottom, are making a lot of money for some physicians. One who has an office on fashionable Park avenue says that at least 20 per cent of his clients now are damaged cartilage in the knee joint. The patients are mostly women.

Merely Ridiculous, Opinion of English Writer.

Vanity is as old as the human race and counted a chief failing of the gentler sex, the daughters of Eve rather than the sons of Adam being accused of it. And this despite the fact that from the fig trees of Eden to the shops of Bond street both sons and daughters have mostly shared and shared alike, says Dr. Francis Aveling, reader in psychology, University of London, in the London Mail.

Clothes in every age have been made not to cover only, but to adorn. Cowries and pearls are not merely forms of portable property.

Yet the vanity of man differs much from that of woman. Men, as a rule, do not powder their noses or deftly wield the lipstick; they carry no mirrors in dainty vanity bags or scraps of filmy lace of manageable handkerchiefs. In the main, their satisfaction in themselves is of a sterner quality—often of the body, but more often of the mind.

Men are vain of their real or fancied achievements, physical prowess or mental superiority; and their vanity generally increases with their age; whereas women's generally does not. A vain young thing may be charming; a vain old woman is a rarity, fortunately, for she would be appalling.

But vain old men—and there are many—are ridiculous. At their time of life they ought to know better, for them the usefulness of vanity—as women realize—has gone. They are merely insufferable bores.

"Vain as a peacock!" Since we read into the "minds" of birds and animals only what we find within our own, we may well learn of peacocks. Nature has given to them what we must often procure somehow for ourselves. And who but a male moralist, grown old in moralizing—for moralists are all old men when they shoot their partition shots at female vanities—would censure nature?

Vanity and the adornments and poses of vanity serve nature's ends. The peacock is not truly "vain" when the gorgeous display of his argosy occurs for him a mate, but the urge of vanity in man achieves the same end.

In most animals what passes for vanity is found in males. In man it is blended with coyness in the female. It serves its racial purpose and is wholly natural.

The male variety of vanity—having a good opinion of oneself—if a man lives up to it, makes for effort and achievement, and so serves both individual and race. The only kind of woman, and therefore insufferable, vanity, is the outworn relic of an eighteenth century past, which holds no promise for the future.

Africans Luxuriate Longer

In certain parts of Africa the locusts are said by explorers to grow to an extraordinary size. In some places it is reported, they attain the length of four inches, and eat more as their ordinary food.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV. 5, 1926.

It seems that after following for a while the example of American diplomats in the matter of simple dress the diplomats of the German republic have grown tired of being mistaken for "either waiters or Americans" and will adopt a modification of the old-time gorgeousness of Imperial Germany.

A Paris cable relates that a schoolgirl went weeping to her mother with the tale of woe that only three of her class of 51 still have long hair, and "they call us old fashioned"—which is "too terrible for words." The cable does not say so, but we doubt not that a threat of suicide brought the mother to terms and the desperate daughter was permitted to "bob".

An Austrian inventor is reported to have constructed a minute flying machine, consisting of a pair of wings moved by a small motor, which can be "worn" by an individual and which will enable him to fly about in comfort and safety. The account allows in every item except the 80-pound weight of the outfit. To "wear" that weight is hardly suggestive of "comfort".

If "Wall Street" were not too busy, it might complain that it is made to serve as an overburdened packhorse. The meeting of a radical labor element in New York not only hooted the name of Queen Marie and censured the authorities for doing her honor but charged that her visit was part of some sort of conspiracy fostered by "Wall Street". In Indiana it is charged that "Wall Street" is behind the effort to investigate the alleged corrupt partnership between the Ku Klux Klan and the Republican organization. To attribute an entirely evil influence to the country's financial center seems to be regarded as the best method of self-defense because, curiously enough, it does seem to be a means of creating some measure of sympathy.

"BURN A BALE."

In former times when soil fertility combined with good weather and good work resulted in an abundant yield the farmer was supposed to be blessed. Now all this seems to be changed and scarcity appears to be the blessing sought. If not, why should the old war-time call of "buy a bale" have been translated into the advice to "burn a bale?" According to reports from South Carolina, it is proposed to make a bonfire of four million bales of cotton (one-fourth of the great crop), or to consume them in great numbers of bonfires throughout the Southern States—as a sure and prompt way to "promote higher prices." Of course it is more than likely that every farmer will wait for his neighbor to burn first, and thus the burning will fail to come off. This would appear to be inevitable not merely because of instinctive reluctance to give an imperishable and valuable world staple to the flames but because of distrust of a theory overlooking the probability that within a few months the sale of the extra supply will go far to balance the loss involved in the present market price.

There was much more conservatism in the cotton convention at Memphis, where it was asserted that the situation is not as bad as reported and where there was a majority of only six out of 336 voters on a motion to call for legislative relief.

A COLORFUL WORD.

A new and picturesque word appears in the report of a recent address before the National Association of Manufacturers by Isaac J. Sherman of the Armtorg Trading Corporation, the concern through which the Soviet government of Russia does its buying and selling in America. Referring to the Russian government's desire for credits shrived for construction purposes such as agricultural and industrial productions, Mr. Sherman said: "Soviet credits are required not for war supplies, ammunition, or other 'infernalia of destruction.'"

As the lexicographers do not give the word "infernalia," we must conclude that Mr. Sherman coined it or adopted it from some one who had previously done so. Whoever its author may be, his instinct led him straight to the word for his purpose. "Infernalia" (or hellish things) is not only peculiarly appropriate as applied to war's deadly engines but is a word that instantly explains itself. For its close relation to "infernal" and "inferno" is at once perceived, and it may as properly be derived from the Latin "infernalis." Though its employment is likely to please pacifists more than professional soldiers, its colorfulness—if not by all its appropriateness—will be generally admitted.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

DETECTING EARLY THYROID TROUBLE.

I have spoken before about the machine that is used to measure the amount of work your body is doing, even when you are lying absolutely at rest, with no digestion going on.

According to your build and weight it requires a certain definite amount of work on the part of your tissues to keep you alive, that is your heart pumping, and your lungs breathing air in and out.

If the machine registers the fact that your body is doing more or less work than normal, then something is wrong. This is called the basal metabolism machine.

One of the first uses for this machine was in cases of thyroid trouble, where it was found that the workings of the body were from ten to forty per cent more than normal, such was the rate at which all the functions of the body were increased in activity.

By rest, mental and physical, many of these cases were restored to health, particularly those where the increase was not more than ten to twenty per cent.

And now two French physicians have developed a test which will also be of great value in early thyroid cases.

The machine mentioned above will show trouble all right, but that trouble may be some hidden infection, which will often require intense searching on the part of the physician to find.

However this new test is based on the fact that an injection of thyroid extract will slow up the pulse and lower the blood pressure.

What does this mean?

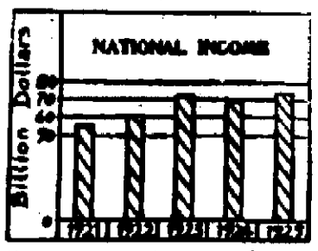
Simply that a case may come to a physician showing extreme nervousness rapid pulse, high blood pressure and so forth, and when he is tested on the first machine (basal metabolism) he is so excited that the reading will be high, and the physician will not be sure whether or not there is infection, thyroid trouble, or just nervousness.

But with this injection of thyroid extract there is the definite action on the heart, blood pressure, and eyes, which means "early thyroid trouble."

And you can readily see what this will mean in treatment. Such cases under rest and proper habits of life, will escape the more serious symptoms of goitre, with their long drawn out medical, or possibly surgical treatment.

TARIFF REDUCTION AGITATION GROWS.

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 5. (Special.)—With the rapid growth of foreign investments in the last few years, has come a growth of banking sentiment in favor of some modification of the tariff that will make it easier for foreign debtors to pay their obligations by selling us their products. Freer trade relations are being urged, and especially the agricultural interests have traditionally favored free trade because their surplus must be sold in the open world market where U. S. tariff protection does them no good, while many of the things farmers must buy are burdened with import dues. Exceptions can be shown, and the handicap may not be as severe as most farmers think, but it exists.



Yet the national income still indicates a decidedly better position than is found in other countries, and nobody wants or expects the entire removal of import duties.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Nov. 5, 1906—Death of Mrs. Henry Bond at her home on Pearl street.

John Dana, Jr., of Ellenville, shot himself through the wrist when his gun caught in a barbed wire fence.

James Sheeley shot a large bear at Grahamsville. It weighed 214 pounds dressed.

Nov. 55, 1916—Ulster County Bible Society celebrated its centennial with meeting in First Dutch Church when Judge A. T. Clearwater, its president, reviewed the history of the organization.

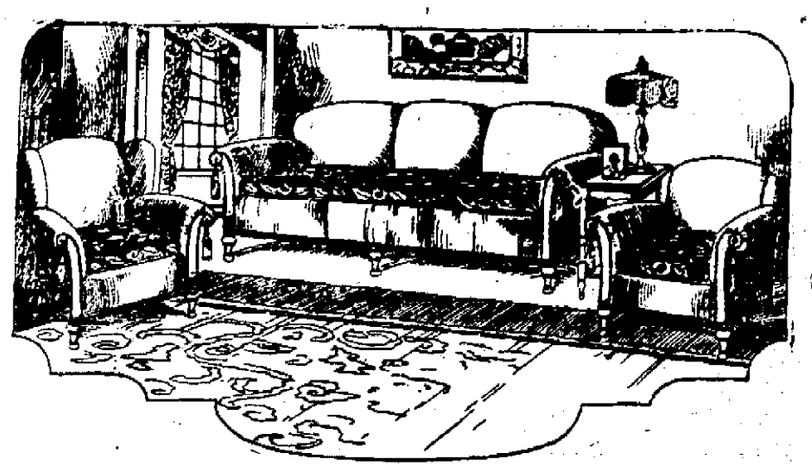
John Louis Hoolihan and Miss Ruth Marie Ryan married.

Death of Christine Lutz at his home on Hunter street, aged 84 years.

Barbara (saying her prayers)—"And bless daddy and mummy and make them happy—if they're not too old for that sort of thing."

Your HOME Should Come FIRST

Just as the highest civilizations are built up among permanent home makers rather than wandering tribes, so also are the finest families developed from stable, refined home influence. Some of the most profound influences of a man's life come from his early childhood environments. Thus it is that more and more the American family is realizing that its home should come first. Comfortable, pleasant surroundings center the family life in the home. Children and friends like to gather around their own home circles rather than to seek outside amusement. This is particularly important in raising the modern child. Make him enjoy staying at home where the environment is cheerful and cozy and where he is proud to invite his friends. Let us show you how such a home can be built from even the most moderate circumstances. There's always a welcome in this store for home-interested people, so come in any time.



Lamps Radiate Happiness

A floor lamp with a beautiful metal base and a silk lined shade is tall enough to draw into its embrace a cozy little family circle. It softens and mellows everything it touches. Only kind thoughts can prosper in its light. Smaller table lamps and bridge lamps of wrought iron or pottery, with their glowing colors of rose and flame have this same effect of radiating good cheer.

Make Your Living Room A Popular Place

A happy and cheerful place where the family congregates after dinner, a place that is warm and cozy on Sunday mornings, that is interesting and attractive for winter evening parties! Fine furniture will help, for no one will deny that a handsomely upholstered davenport, a soft rug and artistic draperies are conducive to comfort and contentment, and even romance. See the attractive colorings and—most important—learn about the interior construction; built to Stock & Cordts standards, employing only the purest and springiest materials.

Suites of 3 Pieces $150 up

Washable Window Shades

DuPont Tontine can be washed. Does not fade, fray, flake, chip or pinhole as even the very best of other shade materials inevitably do.

A Bit of Old Beauty Made New

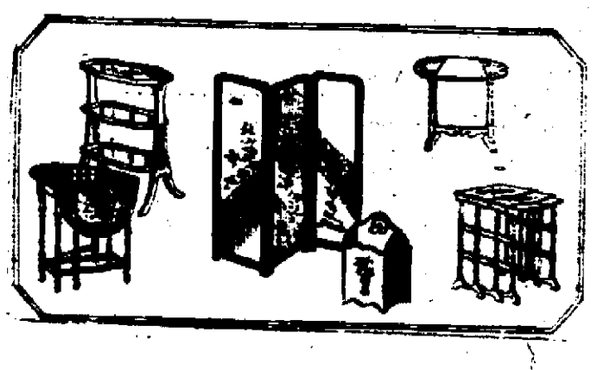
Secretaries have been since before grandmother's time, but never has their workmanship been finer or their woods more beautiful. A secretary in one corner and you have a delightful place where mother can do her accounts or the children their lessons.

A Dining Room In Which You Are Proud to Entertain

The bright gay faces that you can visualize around the table of your dining room suite are enough to make the worthwhileness of a handsomely furnished dining room apparent. Holiday parties, family dinners, even hurried up breakfasts would thrive in such an environment. The suites, whose surface parts are of American walnut veneer wisely combined with kiln-dried hardwood, are artistically designed and upholstered. The prices for 9 pieces, are from $150 up.

Odds and Ends of Lacquer That Beautify Your Home

The little odd pieces are not luxuries; they are necessities. Without them, your home is toneless and bare. But they must be typical of you—a nest of lacquered tables, if you are fond of buffet suppers, a brightly decorated screen for a dull corner, a gateleg table of soft red or green—this way, your home achieves individuality.



Sleepy-time Admiration

A bedroom furnished like this deserves it! Satin-smooth bed that invites sleep with a quality of luxuriousness. Chest of drawers (intriguing thing!) that makes you want to explore its "storage space" even though you know you'll find only your own familiar wearables. And a dresser that adds a nice dignity to the whole set. It's furniture that makes you want to stay awake to admire it—but the comfortable bed won't let you.

Anything that you buy now can be kept here for you until you are ready to have it sent out. Pay a certain sum down and the rest on delivery, or in monthly instalments.

VAULTS THAT HOLD SECRETS OF STATE

Confidential Papers of Presidents at Washington.

The vaults of the Library of Congress contain several valuable collections of confidential papers besides the Lincoln letters, which are to be made public after 21 years under the will of the mentioned President's son, the late Robert Todd Lincoln.

Locked in steel compartments of the library's manuscript department are the Presidential papers of Cleveland, Roosevelt and Taft. They are kept in privacy, not for any specific period, but until further orders are given by those having them in charge.

The widows of Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt may bestow the right of access to these collections, and this permission has been given occasionally for biographical or scientific research.

Chief Justice Taft placed his communications as President in the library for safekeeping some years ago. No part of them may be seen without an order from him in writing. The collection of Charles J. Bonaparte, attorney general under Roosevelt, also is held pending further instructions.

These statesmen belong to the present generation, or were so close to it that they or their executors felt that publication should be delayed until political animosities had faded and personal misunderstandings forgotten.

Custodians of the papers say there is little or nothing in them that would cause diplomatic embarrassment, but might reopen old wounds or revive slumbering controversies. These difficulties will be smoothed out with the years, and there will be no reason to withhold publicity.

No such inhibitions surround the writings of the early Presidents. The manuscripts of George Washington are bound in large volumes, and may be studied in intimate detail by the historian. Similar access is permitted to the writings of the succeeding Presidents—John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson.

Those who enter the reading room of original manuscripts, however, must come recommended by a university or some other organization or individual known to the library authorities.

In the outer room, open to the public, are framed examples of the handwriting of cabinet officers, diplomats, soldiers and others concerned importantly in the development of the country.

Official Mess Carrier

The appointment of Clifford Langdon as successor to Sir Walter Gibson as one of his majesty's four sergeants-at-arms draws attention to this interesting and ancient office, remarks the London News.

For all the military sound of the name, a sergeant-at-arms has now no connection with the army, but is purely a court functionary. It is at present quite safe and reasons that he cannot take his post on an attendant on his majesty. Even here, however, he wears no special uniform, but is distinguished simply by a heavy silver collar of office.

One special charge, further, he has of the regalia at a coronation ceremony. At this time weight is a premium, as it is likely to be decidedly doubtful when coronation day is over.

Too Much

Newton came home extremely late for dinner. He sat down, but did not begin to eat. This also was unusual.

"Newton, where have you been?" asked his mother.

"Down at the drug store and what they told me it was I did, you ought of seen me drink my milk."

"Julia? Where did you get the money?"

"From the Want Ad. We had a suit, a bottle of pop and some candy."

"Why, how much money did it have?"

"He did have 50 cents, but now

Two chargers in one—
trickle and high rate

The new Balkite Charger with both high and low charging rates is two chargers in one. At the low rate it is a trickle charger and can be permanently connected to your "A" battery, in effect converting it into an automatic light-socket radio "A" power supply. At the high rate it is a heavy duty charger. It combines the advantages of both trickle and rapid charging.

Entirely noiseless, the new Balkite Charger can in most cases be used during reception. It is a permanent piece of equipment, having no bulbs and nothing to wear out or replace. It can be used with either 4 or 6-volt "A" batteries. Ask your dealer. Fansteel Products Company, Inc., North Chicago, Ill.

KEEP AUTO FIT WHILE ON TOUR

Proper Time to Take Needed Precautions Is Before the Start.

With every indication that motor touring, and particularly long-distance touring, will exceed all previous records in volume this year, the American Automobile association sounds a note of warning about the importance of keeping the car fit while en tour.

The time to take precautions is before the tour starts, the American Automobile association warns, pointing out that otherwise the motorist is liable to let himself in for hurried repairs and incidental delays, which are liable to mar the tour.

Preparatory Precautions.

This warning is expanded upon in a bulletin issued by the mechanical first-aid department of the Chicago Motor club, which stresses the necessity for three preparatory precautions—a thorough cleansing of the water circulation system, the assurance that the brakes are in perfect order, and the marshaling of good rubber. But these were only the high spots; the bulletin lists half a score of other suggestions, based on the experience of thousands of emergency road service calls.

The tires should be either new or in first-class condition, all cuts and abrasions having been filled with cement and a reliable gauge to keep the pressure at a proper level should be tucked in a side pocket. A daily five-minute inspection will prove well worth while and perhaps prevent a disastrous breakdown.

"Upon the lubrication will depend at least 80 per cent of the car's service. The motorist should determine definitely that the oil particularly suited to his car may be obtained en route, or he should take enough with him to last until his return. The same applies somewhat to gasoline. One should always insist on a reliable, dependable brand. To insure continued, efficient operation it is necessary to go over the grease cups and other points of lubrication before starting each day's trip.

"The wise tourist carries at least two new spare tires complete with at least two spare tubes in waterproof and dustproof bags."

Contents of Tool Kit.

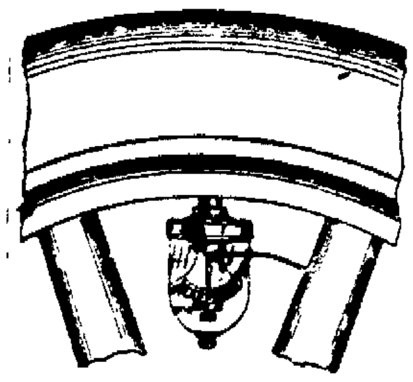
A comprehensive tool kit and complete set of chains to prevent skidding and to help extricate the car from mud holes also are essential. The tool kit, it is suggested might include a large monkey wrench, a small monkey wrench, two sizes of screw drivers, a set of socket wrenches, a set of open-end wrenches, a pipe wrench, a machinist's hammer, a set of punches, cold and cape chisels, two sizes of files, a pair of pliers, a knife, and possibly a small vise. A good jack, preferably of the long-handled variety, a powerful hand pump if the car is not equipped with a power pump, a lug wrench and a small block of wood to go under the jack in soft ground, also are a part of the equipment.

The motorist is also advised to carry a tow rope, which it is pointed out, is "one of those things one may never have to use, but which prove indispensable if the emergency should happen to arise."

"The new gasoline strainer and an air cleaner will increase the efficiency of the car, and some sort of light to illuminate the right-hand ditch at night when passing other cars is also desirable. An extra roll of wire and electric light bulbs will not be amiss, and if there is room for it, a bottle of distilled water for the battery will eliminate frequent stops to give the battery a drink."

Improper Tire Inflation Is Prevented by a Valve

To insure the proper inflation of motor-car tires at all times, a North Dakota inventor has developed a pressure-indicating and controlling air valve which is capable of being employed in several ways. Primarily however, the instrument is supposed to be attached permanently to the valve of each of the four tires of a machine and connected by means of wires to an electric annunciator installed on the dash. It is 1¾ inches in height, 1¾ inches wide, and adjustable so that it is suitable for pneumatics of various sizes and capacities.



The Valve Is Electrically Connected With an Annunciator on the Dash Which Informs a Motorist When the Proper Amount of Air Has Been Delivered to a Tire.

When a tire equipped with the valve is being filled, it is pumped only to the pressure recommended by its manufacturer, for when this is reached the adjusted valve automatically closes, releasing the further flow coming through the supply tube. At the same time an electric contact is made which trips a leaf on the annunciator, indicating that a specific tire has been adequately inflated. When it is not wished to equip a car with a complete set of the valves, one of them may be used as a pocket gauge. Likewise the device can be attached to the supply tube at a filling station and similarly used.—Popular Mechanics Monthly.

Automobiles Will Skid When Tire Rubber Is Wet

Did you ever place dependance on your rubber heels when walking along a rain-swept sidewalk only to be shocked and perhaps bumped by their inability to grip the cement? That proves that rubber must be dry to cling. Once rubber has become wet it is much more slippery than oily metal.

This simple little fact should mean much to motorists, for by it we see that it isn't wet pavements, but wet rubber tires, that skid automobiles. Steel tires wouldn't skid, because neither wet steel nor wet concrete is slippery. But automobiles skid in rainy weather because wet rubber is slippery.

All of which points to the necessity of nonskid chains whenever the tires are damp or wet. Only the presence of steel cross links will effectually stop skidding. And if all accidents from skidding should suddenly and completely be eliminated, motor fatalities and injuries would be reduced nearly one-third. Such is the effect of slippery wet rubber—and the importance of nonskid chains.

Tires in Hot Weather

Many motorists still believe that in hot weather the air in a tire expands to the danger point. It is true, of course, that on a warm day the air does expand, but so slightly that its effect is negligible. The practice of running tires at less than the recommended pressure instead of effecting a saving has cost motorists thousands of dollars, for internal tire heat results not from the temperature of the outside air but from constant bending of the tire as it rolls along the road.

TEST RESISTANCE OF A STEEL GARAGE

The bureau of standards of the Department of Agriculture at Washington deliberately burned two automobiles in a [illegible] of wreckage as shown in the illustration. The fire which registered a temperature of 1,800 Fahrenheit was designed to test the resistance of a steel garage to flames. The garage remained intact and apparently was not affected by the consuming fire.

THE BLESSBOKS

"Good day, Mrs. Blessbok," said Mr. Blessbok.

"Now, how do you know it's a good day when it has only just begun?"

"At the end of the day you might say such a thing," Mrs. Blessbok said, "but not now—at the beginning."

"And why not, pray tell?" asked Mr. Blessbok.

"I do wish, my dear sir, that you would stop talking in such a high and mighty, proud fashion."

"Why do you say 'Pray tell'? It's most silly. You are putting on airs."

"My love," said Mr. Blessbok, "I'm not putting on airs."

"Besides, you spoke of airs when you should speak of air.

"Air is all about us. We breathe it, we let it give us freshness and life.

"We don't put it on. We take it in."

"My dear Mr. Blessbok, I didn't mean what you think. Putting on airs means that some one or some creature is being silly and affected."

"Then if you can say such things, I can hardly be allowed to say 'Good day.'

"Besides, wishing a creature a good day is a very kindly thing to do.

"It means I wish you a good sort of a day instead of a bad sort of a day."

"It doesn't mean the day is good to start off with all by itself.

"It means that I hope you will have a good day and that the day will be good to you.

"Of course I don't suppose it is up to the day itself to be good to you, but I hope that you will have a nice day and that on this particular day, and on other days you will have good luck and happiness."

"Oh, thank you, thank you, I understand," said Mrs. Blessbok.

"We are very rare now, though once we were quite common," Mr. Blessbok continued.

"Oh, indeed," said Mrs. Blessbok, "I would like to hear something of our family history."

"Some may know a great deal of it, but I must confess I do not."

"I would gladly know more."

"Of course we belong to the antelope or deer family," Mr. Blessbok began.

"We have horns which go rather straight up into the air, and do not curve as the horns of some deer curve.

"We are a queer purple and white color and when we used to be common, in our family home in South Africa, they used to say that the plains were almost purple in color.

"They meant by that that there were so many of us that it seemed as though the plains were purple.

"Just as fields can look a certain color because of flowers growing in it, so did the plains look purple because so many of us were about.

"But alas, we are no longer common.

"Our family became rare after a war known as the Boer war. The war was fought where we lived and so many of us were destroyed then.

"We have never been common since.

"Ever since then we have been rare. Such is our family history."

"I have enjoyed hearing it," said Mrs. Blessbok, "but I hate to think of animals who are wiped out, or almost wiped out for some reason or another.

"It is nice to think of many Blessboks in the world—or at least it is nice to think that when one is a Blessbok.

"Let us hope there will be more Blessboks in the years to come and that we will not be so rare."

"Let us hope that," said Mr. Blessbok.

Would Shrink to Meet Him

This morning on my way to the office I met Jamie with her two-year-old brother toddling along beside her. Brother had on a pair of new blue coveralls fully two sizes too large for him.

"Well, honey," I remarked sociably, "I see Rod has some new clothes. Aren't they a bit big?"

"Yes, sir I guess they is," replied Jamie earnestly, "but when they's washed I think they'll shrink to meet him."

MARLBOROUGH.

Marlborough, N. Y., Nov. 4.—Excavation began Tuesday, October 26, on the lot on the corner of Western avenue and West street, recently secured by the Standard Oil Company. A gas and oil station is to be built on the property. The Newburgh Building Supply Company is handling the excavation work. Their big steam shovel came up from Newburgh on Monday and was on the job the next day, with the usual crowd of small boys and idlers busily engaged in watching its labors. The lot is a high one and about 2,000 yards of dirt must be removed before the building can begin. Most of the soil has been eagerly secured by local people for filling lots and hollow places. A good supply of it went to some of the churches for their property. The excavation and leveling is completed, though the wetness of the soil when the work was first begun delayed it somewhat.

The Sundstrom Motor Company has sold a new Ford touring car to Bela Sekeshazy of Roseton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Goudy returned last Saturday from a two weeks' trip to Chicago and Detroit. They traveled 2,100 miles on their journey, motoring along the lake shore on their western trip and returned by way of Pittsburgh. In Detroit they attended a convention of the direct mail association.

Dr. Charles Robinson of Newark, N. J., Miss Dorothy Alridge of Waterbury, Conn., and Miss Claire Couperthwait of Brooklyn spent the week end at Shady Brook Farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Velie who have been motoring in more southern states on their wedding trip, returned home Saturday. They spent several days in New York city on their way home. They drove as far south as Raleigh, N. C.

Sixty people, about half of them from Highland, Pythian Sisters and their families, enjoyed a Hallowe'en party at the lodge rooms in Marlborough on Wednesday evening, October 28. Games, dancing and refreshments were enjoyed. A wide variety of costumes helped to make the party interesting. Mrs. Philip Schantz of Highland won first prize for the most artistic costume. Mrs. Wilkinson carried off the honors for the most humorous attire. The prizes were a basket of chrysanthemums and a basket of assorted grapes. The judges were Alfred Goldt, Lester Mackey of Highland, Thomas Greco and Arthur Reynolds of Marlborough. The lodge cleared $10 from fees required from those who came unmasked.

Miss Margaret Smith of Newburgh was the guest of Mrs. Mary Dugan over the week end.

Mrs. Walter Betts and her two little girls left Wednesday for Jackson Heights, Long Island, where they will spend the winter. Mr. Betts has been engaged in the real estate business there for about a year.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Haviland have moved from their home on the North Road to the house on the South Road, purchased last year from Frank Young. Their former home will be rented to Mr. Lord, superintendent at Rosoff, who has been living in the Rosoff cottage on the Tucker and Strong place.

The Young People's Club of the Presbyterian Church combined its regular meeting Friday night with a Hallowe'en frolic at the E. C. Quimby home. Freda Lyon and Frances Johnston were the club committee in charge of the refreshments.

The cafeteria supper held last Friday evening by the fall group of the Marlborough Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society resulted in a net benefit to the church of over $10. Besides a financial success the event was particularly pleasant for all who attended. The menu which featured clam chowder was well planned and prepared. An interesting program was given. Mrs. D. S. Hutchins, chairman, was in charge of the dinner and James Shurter arranged the program. The pastor sang a solo. Two little girls, Helen Lent and Helen Clark, sang a Hallowe'en duet. Mr. Colwell, director of the local choir, also sang a solo. Mrs. Calvin Wygant, Jr., played a number of selections on the piano. Mr. Shurter accompanied the soloists.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hannigan visited Mrs. L. P. Gaffney of New Paltz on Tuesday.

Tuesday, Election Day, members of the Marlborough W. C. T. U. put on a chowder sale and also served lunch at noon. There were some home-made pies sold after lunch hour at bargain prices. The sale was held in the empty store in R. O. Froemel's building on Western avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tierney, Mrs. William Tierney and daughter, Zeta, of Newburgh, and the Rev. Louis Tierney of Philadelphia visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Manion on Thursday night.

Mrs. Herbert Bell has donated $5 to the nurses' fund. A joint meeting of the Marlborough-Lloyd Nurse Association will be held November 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Velie entertained Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Townsend Velie, their nephew and his bride. A formal reception was held with about seventy-five people present.

Mrs. E. B. Warren with the Superior Lodge of Newburgh attended the installation of officers at their sister lodge at Peekskill Tuesday night.

THE VLY.

The Vly, Nov. 4.—The Vly school will give two plays entitled "Fudge and a Burglar" and "Pat's Matrimonial Adventure." In the first play a bevy of modern college girls give a midnight party in violation of the rules of the school. In the second play a blundering Irishman, who has answered a matrimonial advertisement, gets into the wrong house and meets a widow who wants a hired man and not a husband. There will also be a special feature during the plays which will be of interest to those who attend. The date of performance has not been set yet but further notice will be given.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the infection and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and to combine the building up tonic effect with the healing elements. Money refunded if any cough or cold in any member of the family is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Rotarians Hear Of Brick Industry

Morton L. Goldrick Delivers Interesting Talk at Rotary Club Luncheon On The History of Brick and Manufacturing Methods.

Morton L. Goldrick was the speaker at this week's Rotary Luncheon held at the Governor Clinton Hotel, taking as his topic, "Brick—Its History and Manufacturing Methods." Mr. Goldrick being a member of Philip Goldrick and Sons, brick manufacturers of Goldrick's Landing, was well acquainted with his subject, and spoke as follows:

Since early civilization we have used brick, history does not make clear its earliest use but legends of the past reveal that through fire brick was brought forth to render its great service to mankind. In the earliest stages of development it was used after being thoroughly dried by the sun and without benefit of fire. Once a great king prepared an enormous pyre to make an offering to the Gods, the base of this pyre was packed with clay. Under the great heat of the burning pyre the clay so hardened that it resembled stone, thus came into being burned clay products. Babylon and Nineveh were built of brick, much of ancient Egypt was built of brick, the Children of Israel under Moses were forced to make brick by Pharoah. The finest records of ancient history have been largely carried down on burned clay. Nebuchadnezzar recorded his entire reign on tablets of burned clay. Brick made in the Ur six thousand years ago are being uncovered by expeditions in good, sound, usable condition. In early Chinese history the Tartars made regular raids into China stripping the countrysides and causing continual fear in the hearts of the Chinese peasants. A wise king of ancient China erected the Great Wall of China of brick and completely stopped these awesome raids of the savage Tartars.

Italy has ever pointed with pride to the coliseum, a wonderful structure of the great Roman Empire in its period of power. Shortly after the recent World War the people of Rome took brick from the remains of that once mighty structure and built several new houses with them. The destruction of the Coliseum seemed imminent when Mussolini decreed that no more brick could be taken and enforced his decree with drastic punishment.

They wore well, those ancient brick that they should have lasted through the centuries and require a law to prevent people using them two thousand years after they were made.

Present Size Most Adaptable.

Time has shaped the brick to its present size. The Chinese wall is built of tremendous sized units, the brick of Nebuchadnezzar's day was flat and nearly as wide as it was long and very thin, but, with the passing of time we have arrived at the present size as the building unit most adaptable to the use of a craftsman in erecting a building. The real craftsman can perform miracles with the small building unit we call a brick.

The most beautiful homes in the world are built of brick designed by better architects, of this material, because of its natural beauty, its permanence and its adaptability to architectural effects.

Manufacturing Methods.

Clay for brick manufacturing is found in abundant quantities along the shores of the Hudson river. The manufacture consists of digging the clay from the banks by mechanical means, or by hand, and is drawn to the machine by motor trucks, industrial railway cars or by the age-old method of horse and cart.

The clay after being taken from the bank is dumped into a pug inill, which is a mixing device with numerous knives so arranged that the clay will be cut and ground to a proper consistency.

During this process a certain quantity of sharp tempering sand and a small portion of culm is spread upon the clay to be thoroughly mixed with it.

The sand is used to strengthen and firmly unite the clay, and the culm is used to attract the heat, in burning.

After the clay has been tempered sufficiently it is forced, through the mechanical operation of the pug mill, into the brick machine where it is again tempered before being moulded out into brick.

Three Methods of Drying.

There are three different methods of drying the brick: The old method of dumping them from the moulds onto the open yard is still largely used and was the universal system in the Hudson River district, for more than a hundred years.

The next method is the pallet yard, where the bricks are moulded out on wooden pallets and placed in racks to dry. These racks are protected from the weather, although arranged to permit good sun and air drying, and about doubles the production over the open yard unit.

The latest and most improved method of drying however, is the steam drying system. In this operation the brick are moulded out on steel pallets and placed in racks made of steam pipes where the drying is completed much quicker than with the other methods and nearly doubles the production per unit, over the pallet yard.

Burning the Brick.

When the brick are sufficiently dry, they are brought to the kiln sheds where they are built into units of approximately one million brick. The brick are set into these kilns by hand, with the exception of a few plants where mechanical means are now installed.

In the sheds, several kilns are in various stages of building and when each reaches its complement, it is scoved and plastered, clay-loam being used for this purpose, and then made ready for burning.

Wood coal and oil are used in burning. The former was standard for many years following which coal became nearly universal, while at the present time oil is taking place of coal in many plants.

The time required for burning a kiln differs according to the clay, and the method of manufacture, but the minimum is 72 hours and in many plants it takes 130 hours to completely burn a kiln. The heat ranges from 1,400 degrees to 2,000 degrees and the brick attain almost a white heat before being properly burned.

Loading and Handling.

After the kilns are allowed from one week to ten days to cool, the brick are loaded on barrows and wheeled to the barges on which they are stowed for shipment to New York.

The method of handling is being improved through the use of mechanical handling devises which will no doubt take the place of the hand method, now employed in a very short time.

There are two or three plants already equipped to load the barges mechanically.

We are living in one of the largest brick-producing centers in the world. Every year 350,000,000 brick are turned out by Kingston manufacturers to build up the Great City of New York.

To make those 350,000,000 bricks a force running as high as 2,000 men is maintained during the busy season. A number of plants operate all year long but the busy season reaches its peak in July and August when the hot sun dries brick quickly and it can be placed in kilns and burned with the least delay.

"Build With Brick."

I have tried to tell you something of the history of brick, something of the methods of manufacturing brick, now may I tell you why I think you should use brick in your own case? There is an erroneous belief in the minds of nearly everyone that the brick house must necessarily be an expensive house. Such is not the truth. The only difference in the cost of a brick house and one of less permanent materials, is in the walls. Your land for a brick house costs no more, your plumbing costs no more, your plastering costs no more, your roofing costs no more. The walls of a house represent but a small part of your total cost. In no case would a building of brick add over seven per cent to the cost of your home, more generally five per cent is generous. Let us grant that it does cost seven per cent more, what do you get for that seven per cent? A home built of a material that has and will last for centuries. It has burned once, it can never burn again. It does not require painting and your seven per cent is returned to you in the space of time that a frame house would require two paintings. Your home then, is fire-proof, its ultimate cost is less than that of one built of less permanent material. It is beautiful, it is cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

Building for Future.

It is built for more than a day when you build of brick, you build, not only for yourself but for your children and their children. You have benefited your community by helping to make it safe from the spectre of fire and by adding dignity to its appearance. He who builds of brick builds well and, proudly may he say: This is my home, the ravages of time cannot affect it, as weather only beautifies it. Fire cannot touch it, it has been burned and cannot burn again. I have the lowest upkeep little or no repairs or painting, the lowest insurance rate is mine and if I wish to sell—the highest resale value is mine, because the brick house does not depreciate and is always in demand. Inasmuch as I am a brick manufacturer I naturally say "Build With Brick". If I were not a brick manufacturer and yet knew as well as I do the merits of brick, I would befriend you by still saying, build with brick for satisfaction and permanent economy.

Russian Woman Diplomat Barred

Washington, Nov. 5 (AP).—The executive order of President Woodrow Wilson barring advocates of anarchy revolution or agitation from the United States has been invoked again by the state department—this time to prevent Soviet Russia's sole woman diplomat, Madame Alexandra Kollantay, from passing through this country on her way to her new post as minister to Mexico.

Previous the order had been invoked by Secretary of State Kellogg to bar the Count and Countess Karolyi of Hungary and Shapurji Saklaivala, then a communist member of the British parliament.

Madame Kollantay, former Soviet minister to Norway, had applied to the American consul general in Berlin for a passport visa which would have permitted her to visit the United States. The request was denied by the consul general, with the approval of the state department, on the ground that Mme. Kollantay was "one of the outstanding members of the Russian Communist party and a member of the Third Congress of the Communist Internationale, who has been actively associated with international communist subversive movement."

She is the daughter of a noted Russian general but embraced Bolshevism.

Good Use Made of Kites

Kites are by no means merely toys. Since the middle of the Nineteenth century their use for military and meteorological purposes has increased. Observatories record temperature and humidity and test the velocity of the wind by means of a kite specially constructed, which looks like a box, with an area of sail varying from twenty-five to seventy-five square feet.

Insects Unabided

It is estimated that the total damage every year in the United States caused by a few species of insects amounts to more than $1,250,000,000, notwithstanding our increasing knowledge of the habits of insects and investigations of new methods of controlling the injurious species. The economic loss due to insects seems to be increasing, in spite of the intelligence of man.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN relieved constipation of long standing

Mr. Charles R. Pollard, of Walworth, Wisconsin, will testify that habit-forming pills and drugs were even worse than useless in relieving his constipation.

"I am writing to tell you of the grand results I have received from using your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Before I commenced using your ALL-BRAN food I was obliged to take a laxative every night, and being a ruptured man aggravated this trouble and made it all worse . . . but since using your ALL-BRAN I have laid all my laxative medicine and pills away and my bowels are as regular as a clock."

CHARLES R. POLLARD,
Walworth, Wisconsin.

Don't let constipation drag you down, and don't become a slave to habit-forming pills and drugs. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, eaten regularly, is guaranteed to relieve constipation or your money is returned, because it is 100% bran. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Use it in cooking with the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek, Michigan. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere.

CANADIAN DOLLAR JOLTS VISITORS

Dominion Money's Advantage Over Ours Due Partly to Trade Balance.

Toronto, Ont.—United States visitors to Canada are chagrined when they find the American dollar is now at a discount here.

In a monetary way the amount of the discount is insignificant. For all ordinary transactions United States currency is accepted as par by everyone everywhere in Canada. But on large banking transactions the technical discount becomes a reality and the American eagle has a little bit clipped off its wings.

The prosaic rates of exchange tables on the financial pages tell the story. Day after day the Canadian dollar is quoted in New York at a slight premium. Some days it is only three thirty-seconds of 1 per cent premium; more frequently it is five thirty-seconds or more.

What is the explanation? The subject of rates of exchange is so complicated and so contentious that it would be foolish to be dogmatic, but there are certain explanatory conditions that are obvious.

Production One Reason.

In the first place Canada is producing wealth at a rate which, having regard for her small population and scale of expenditure, is enormous. Hundreds of millions of dollars a year from her wheatfields, more hundreds of millions of dollars a year from her pulp-wood forests and mines, to say nothing of the output of factories, grazing lands, hardwood forests, fisheries and other sources of wealth, are building up substantial surpluses.

For the year ending July 31, 1926, Canada's excess of exports over imports amounted to $388,000,000—more than $40 for every man, woman and child in the dominion. A proportionate favorable trade balance for the United States would be around $5,000,000,000

A favorable trade balance first made its appearance in Canada during the war in the era of high prices and munitions business. It was predicted it would disappear when abnormal conditions passed So it did—almost. In 1920 it was only $11,000,000. But since then year by year it has grown. Last year the increase was $100,000,000 and there is no sign now of its diminution.

Another factor in the Canadian dollar premium is the continued influx of outside capital. Every year for 11 years there has been a stream of United States capital flowing into Canada at the rate of $200,000,000 a year It finds investment either in government bonds or in industrial enterprises. Before 1914 the flow was from Great Britain.

Some economists, particularly high protectionists, who are dissatisfied with the present conditions of trade, claim that it is this stream of United States capital into Canada that is the decisive factor in putting the Canadian dollar at a premium. They say the favorable trade balance is illusory and disappears when invisible exports and imports are taken into account.

Interest Big Item.

But the chief invisible item is interest on foreign investments in Canada. These are estimated at around $3,000,000,000, on which the interest would be, say $300,000,000. Substantial reductions must be made from this amount. Some of this interest remains in Canada for fresh investment, the balance or tourist traffic will account for another huge sum. Canadians also have investments abroad on which they collect interest.

Demonstrably Canada's real favorable trade balance is large even if some deduction has to be made from the $388,000,000 which the government figures show. It represents a real increase in wealth in the country. When there is added to it the large annual acquisitions of fresh foreign capital coming in to be added to the investments of profits that Canadians are themselves making, the anomaly of the premium on the Canadian dollar is not as puzzling.

Canada's prosperity makes her a better customer than ever of Uncle Sam. While her excess of exports over imports last year were $388,000,000 for the whole world, she bought from Uncle Sam $170,000,000 more than she sold to him. Even if the United States did take payment in securities, the condition reflected here is not one which Canadians accept as permanently satisfactory.

Paper From Bamboo May Supply the Earth

Bombay.—Forest research experts in India have discovered how to use bamboo as pulpwood in the manufacture of white paper. The process, it is announced, has been perfected after 15 years' experimenting by the Forest Research Institute and college at Debra Dun.

Make Your Hens Lay More Eggs!

You can do it—just give them Ful-O-Pep Egg Mash! Start right now—this week—and soon you'll be gathering more eggs every day. Hens must work when they get this exceptional feed because it gives them exactly the things that go to make eggs—plus Cod Liver Meal to make every other ingredient give more value.

Remember the name—Look for the blue-and-white striped sack!

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH YOUR HALL?

Most halls are cold looking, they lack something, what is it? Most of them would look better if they had a console table with narrow mirror above. Finish should either be walnut or mahogany or carved old oak. We have a very good assortment now to select from, the prices vary from $25.00 to $55.00.

Vine 17-Year Locust

The so-called "seventeen-year" locust is not a special kind of locust at all, but the common variety which changes its form under certain conditions. The fact has been discovered by a scientist at work in Egypt, where the locust pest has been a problem for years.

Highest "Spite" Fence Will Block All Fliers

Lincoln, Neb.—Unable to obtain aid of the courts in preventing airplanes from a flying school adjoining his farm, south of here, from flying across his place, Emil A. Glatt has begun to build the biggest "spite" fence recorded in legal history.

The fence will cost Glatt many dollars, but he is ready to pay.

The fence will be 45 feet high, built of wire, and kept in place by huge towers reared on cement foundations. There will be eight towers, about 150 feet apart. Between the towers will be stretched six strands of heavy wire, one above the other, in the manner of a fence. They will be strong enough to bring to grief any airplane that strikes them.

Glatt began the fence when the court refused to issue an injunction restraining the fliers from flying across his place. Glatt said they flew low for the thrill of exciting his family and his poultry, cows, horses, and hogs.

Lacked Exercise

"Now," said the iceman, after he had climbed 479 flights of stairs, delivered 36,871 pounds of ice, watered and fed the horses, walked ten blocks home, spaded the garden, mowed the lawn and romped two hours with the kids, "I'm gonna take my reducing exercises."—American Legion Monthly.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Friday, November 5.

The Brooklyn Radio Exposition program will provide the opening radio feature for Friday night and will be broadcast by WJZ and WGY at 8:00. WCAE will radiate a concert by a 45-voice choir at 8:30. Nine o'clock will find several feature programs taking the air. At this time an Episcopal choir will broadcast from WNYC; KDKA will present the Teaberry Time which will include a novelty program, "From the Story Book," which embodies a theme which takes its origin from stories and fables, and WMAQ and WLS will present the light opera, "Pirates of Penzance." At 9:15 WGY will broadcast two one-act plays and at 10:00 the Schenectady station with WJZ will feature the Baldwin Hour.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Nov. 4.—A community Chautauqua for the Phoenicia Baptist Church and the church at Chichester will be held in the Chichester hall Saturday evening at 8 o'clock and the second performance will be given in the I. O. O. F. Hall at Phoenicia on Saturday, November 13. Season tickets for the chautauqua are now on sale and as the entertainments are to be given by the Grayson Theatrical company it is considered a certainty that all performances will be of interest to the audiences. With the troop there are several saxophone players, banjo players, Marimba xylophone artists and an accomplished ventriloquist.

The Phoenicia Baptist Church and the Chichester Methodist Church will unite and hold union services on Sunday evening, November 7, in the Phoenicia church. The Rev. A. J. Colley will deliver the sermon and the Grayson performers will assist in the musical numbers. On the following Sunday the services will be held in the Chichester church and the pastor, the Rev. Skidmore, will deliver the message. Everybody is welcome to the services.

Eleanor Gunn
On Fashions

A More Dignified, Grown-Up Type of Dress Has Arrived, and Formality Is the Premier Consideration for Other Than Sports Wear.

It has been said by some fashion authorities that the day of the flapper is doomed. Not that the lure of youth is not as everlasting as the hills, but that one has grown weary of pursuing youth, or the semblance of it, and has become reconciled to a dignity that may be as chic as the trappings of sweet sixteen. To this end have dresses assumed more elaboration of detail, and a greater pretense generally.

Coupled with rich colors and the superlatives in material, the current fashions seem advanced in sophistication and seem more frankly to admit being grown-up. Jabots, surplice lines, blouses, and a general breaking-up of severe lines are all kindly to the more mature. The flattering fashion of bundling one's throat in furs and wearing hat brims that cast becoming shadows is another feather, so to speak, in the cap of the not-so-young set.

Sports clothes naturally are and always will be young in suggestion. The smart and rather conspicuous travel coats now being worn are about as far from being "old lady-fied" as plaids and smart lines can make them. Furs are dyed in every color—greens, blues, purples, reds, —what matter what color the animal since no one is concerned with anything except effectiveness. Appliques of fur are again being admitted many being in a sort of geometrical design.

Patch pockets of fur are another clever treatment, while the fur-lined coat is frequently designed to have a fur gilet, or slenderizing revers, turned back to show the fur beneath. Beaver is one of the smart sport furs, and fox remains the premier choice for more formal effects.

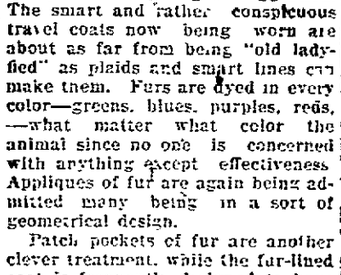
End of World's Lifetime

For a while, at least, says the Popular Science Magazine, we don't have to worry about the world's coming to an end. After doing a bit of simple figuring with bewildering rows of ciphers, Prof. F. R. Moulton of the University of Chicago now assures us that our earth still has some 900,000,000,000 years to go on whirling around the sun.



Added Beauty In an Hour

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I use a hair dressing which great experts made especially for me. It keeps my hair curly, gives it a sheen. I never go to a hairdresser, never have a Marcel wave. Yet everyone who sees me on the stage or off marvels at my curly, glowing hair.

Now I have placed this dressing at every woman's call. All toilet counters supply it as Edna Wallace Hopper's Wave and Sheen. The price is 75c. My guarantee comes with each bottle. If it doesn't delight you, doesn't double the beauty of your hair at once, ask for your money back.

Go try it now. It is one of the best helps I ever found for women, especially for those with bobbed hair.

Fine for Wear During Cool Football Weather

This gray caracul coat, trimmed with beaver, will prove a very comfy wrap during the snappy days of fall. The finishing decorative touch is an alligator leather belt.

Velvet Promises to Be an Autumn Favorite

The fabrics of autumn include no distinct novelties, although several old favorites which have been missing in recent seasons are returning to favor. Velvet will probably be the most prominent material by the time fall is well under way and it will be used impartially for hats, dresses, coats and wraps. Metallic brocades will again be employed for robes and wraps du soir, and they will be even more supple than last season. Crepe satin is destined to have a tremendous revival, and the Paris couture is shrewdly making use of its reversible feature—it is dull on one surface and shiny on the other. Flat crepes, fade silk, crepe de chine and georgette are among other fabrics which will be employed to usher in the new elegance.

In the matter of colors, red, notably the shades known as claret and chanel red, predominated at the early Paris openings. Blues and greens in a wide range have also come in for their share of the spotlight, while black apparently has become a staple color—it outnumbered any other single shade during the first week of the Paris fall openings.

Puff Cuffs Add Formal Note in Fall Fashions

The vogue for the huge puff cuffs which was launched as one of the autumn modes has been widely accepted. These give an air of formality to simple frocks, and have the additional advantage of making the hands look slim and fragile.

A plain black gown of crepe de chine or satin beaute attains an air of distinction when trimmed with huge "muff" cuffs of gold thread darned lace or of fine brussels net. The cuffs are composed of tiers of the lace, sometimes as many as 20 rows deep.

A plaited frock of gray crepe de chine achieves quite an unusual appearance when trimmed with puff cuffs of organdie, backed with stiff muslin to hold them in place. When material of this type is used for the cuffs, about ten or twelve rows usually are found sufficient.

Whether this vogue will attain the same amount of popularity with Englishwomen is regarded with some doubt, as the Englishwoman likes to dispense with as much of the superfluous as is possible.

Bloused Effect Shown in New Fall Fashions

An outstanding detail of the modes launched for autumn is the bloused effect. This appears in practically every collection of note, showing that it has been unanimously indorsed by the most important designers.

Frequently the blouse continues all the way around but it is perhaps a bit smarter to have it appear in back while the front of the frock is arranged to give an upward effect. Belts are used in some instances to achieve the new line, which is also obtained by tucks across the back or by folds that are caught into the side seams.

Bows of All Kinds Are in Fashion Limelight

Watteau bows, says a Parisian observer, are to be seen on the back of the bodice, between the shoulders. Louis XIII bows on the front of the dress, with long loose ends hanging down to the bottom of the skirt; bows of taffeta, tulle, satin crepe and brocade; bows of fur placed like a long necktie or as an ornament on pockets, or as a wrap fastening, or again on the waistband, or panels or waistcoat adorn every kind of dress. They are wide, long, supple, pretty and full of movement and they give surprising effectiveness to all sorts of toilettes.

Fairy Finance

"Fairy money" in the name given fonts locally to "found" money, the reason for this being that a good fairy placed it there for the benefit of the finder. But there is no mention of the bad fairy who made the original owner of the money lose it.

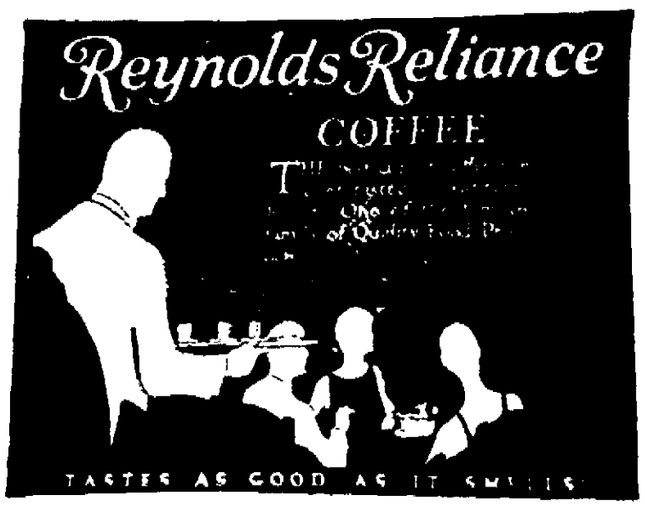
Send 10c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1926 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle illustrating 20 of the various simple stitches, all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Send is the stuff that prevents us from slipping.



Fashion Show Great Success

The Fashion Show given at the Y. W. C. A. on Wednesday evening under the patronage of the Business Girls' Club, assisted by the merchants of the city, was one of the most successful events of its kind ever staged in the city. It was arranged by the Misses Catherine Salzman and Mae Lyons of the Kay-May Shop, assisted by Miss Margaret Richards. An enthusiastic audience of 300 enjoyed the program and beautiful clothes. Orange colored decorations at windows and over lights, together with autumn leaves, made attractive decorations and a long promenade was arranged leading to the stage.

The showing of all the things a woman would like to wear was remarkably fine and was enhanced by the attractiveness of the models, who were the Misses Jean Castor, Harriet Misner, Nellie Woolsey, Dorothy Britcliffe, Gladys Hopper, Margaret Richards, Florence DuMond, Alice McLaughlin, Thelma Durr, Kathryn Schwalbach, Roberta Froelich and Mrs. A. McLaughlin.

The stage setting was also handsome and appropriate.

The program included the following numbers:

A Showing of Sport Clothes.

Dance by Burnadette Walker.

A Showing of Afternoon Dresses, Dress Coats and Hats.

Duet: "Passage Birds' Farewell" "April Morning" The Misses Mildred Messinger and Jessie Cowley.

Showing of Evening Dresses and Fur Coats.

Dance by Miss Margaret Richards.

Showing of Corsets and Lingerie.

1776-1926:—The Curved Line Becomes Straight. Miss Nellie Woolsey was the model for the costuming of the Colonial period and Miss Kathryn Schwalbach for the present modes.

Announcements as to the program, the garments shown, fabrics, etc., and the merchants contributing the garments were graciously made by Miss Charlotte E. McClarey. One particularly pleasing feature of this Fashion Show was the smoothness with which the program proceeded without waits or delays.

The Business Girls' Club wish to thank the following merchants for contributing so generously to this entertainment: Charlotte E. Mc Clary, Carl Millinery, Gold's Reliable Shop, Joseph Kirchner, Kathryn Zucca, Wonderly Company, L. B. Van Wagenen Co., Kay-May Shop, C. A. Baltz, Herman La Tour, New York Cloak and Suit Co., Rosenthal and Braun, Wesley Gregory, Kingston Lumber Company.

SAUGERTIES.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)

Hanover, N. H.—George F. Baker, 86-year-old New York banker, has added Dartmouth to the colleges of which he is a benefactor. He is revealed as the donor of $1,000,000 for a library. He gave $5,000,000 to Harvard's business school and has also made gifts to Cornell. He never went to college himself. His son attended Harvard.

New York—Son will succeed father as dean of teachers' college, Columbia, next June. James E. Russell, 36, will take the place of William Fletcher Russell, 62.

New Haven—An alumni fund, now totalling over $3,000,000 prevents a deficit at Yale. In the last fiscal year $326,586 from the fund helped pay the university's expenses of $4,573,441.

New York—Such is the extent of Scotch thrift that the U. S. A. is exporting small savings banks to the land of the heather. In response to rush orders 5,000 are on the Cameronia.

London—The royal family's gold plate has been used for the first time since the war. Its purpose was merely decorative at a dinner at which the principal dish was venison killed by King George himself. Delegates to the imperial conference partook of it.

New York—Rupert Hughes at bat again. He says that the not particularly blameworthy facts about George Washington which he has revealed cannot hold candle to untrue stories whispered in corners of rooms by ardent Virginians.

Perpetual Electrification

Electrification that lasts for years—perhaps forever—has been achieved by a Japanese physicist, Prof. Motofaro Eguchi, at Tokyo, says the New York World Magazine. He has taken a simple wax mixture, melted it and allowed it to harden while in a strong electric field between two metal plates, with the result that the wax cake retains a strong electric charge permanently. Some of these cakes have kept their charges since 1919 and show no signs of losing it.

A complete rearrangement of the atoms in the wax is the secret of this, Professor Eguchi believes. This may cause important changes in the theory of the atom. Some of the wax cakes have retained a surface charge of 120,000 volts to the square inch.

DANCE!

Tonight Mannerchor Hall
10—Californians—10
Will Play.

Mopsy: Do you suppose the color of her hair is natural?

Flopsy: Heavens, no, my dear—she's a dyed - in - the - Woolworth blonde!

Handsome Harry Says—"I used to love my girl just because of the clothing she wore—but it's all off now."

Proud of Her Purchase!

While strolling along with a girl that I know
I observed with no little amaze
Her dress was so thin that the raiment below
Was apparent to every one's gaze.

So in my best manner I mentioned the fact
Of this somewhat diaphanous gown,
And though I have reason for pride in my tact,
My remark was received with a frown.

"If you knew the cost of the raiment you see,"
The indignant lady replied,
"I think it most likely that you would agree
The transparency's quite justified!"

Mother (looking through magazine): "Darling, I see from statistics that every third baby born in the world is a Chinese."

Father (fondling his first-born): "Then thank goodness this is our first."

After all, life is just one grand scramble from the Baby Buggy to the Hearse.

When a man urges his wife to be a good sport he means he wants to cut up without being lectured.

Barber shave,
Man sneeze;
Man dead,
Next, please!

The rain blew in his auto
He got soaked, without a doubt.
He quickly put the curtains up—
And then the sun came out.

"Percy bet Phyllis he would be engaged before she was."

"Who won?"

"Neither. They're engaged to each other."

We wonder if a girl hates the task of painting her face as much as a man hates that of shaving his.

Clarice: Aren't you coming in swimming?

Gladys: I can't. A moth ate my bathing suit.

"The little rascal! He must have been on a diet."

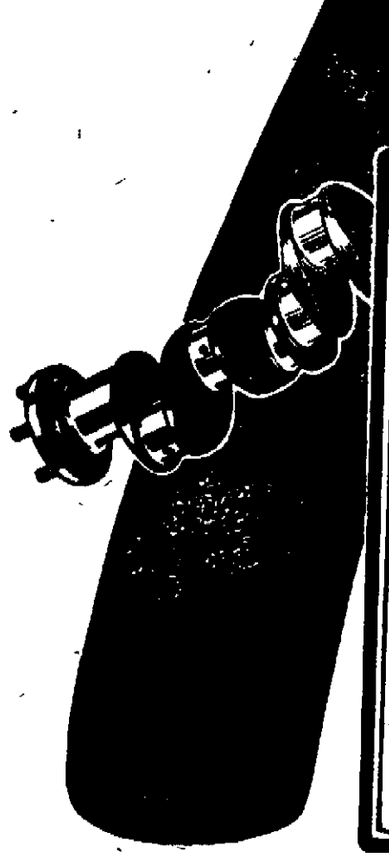
NASH
Seven Bearing Crankshaft MOTOR



The Ultra Modern Motor
World's Smoothest Type

ONLY Nash of all the great motor car manufacturers offers you the vital advantage of a 7-bearing crankshaft motor in every model.

This is the motor type that engineering authorities concede to be the newest and highest expression of six-cylinder power-plant development.

Come drive one of these new Nash models. See clearly for yourself the utter power-smoothness and power-quietness that this 7-bearing motor gives—how striking its performance is as contrasted to older motor types with 3- or 4-bearing crankshaft design.

Don't buy an old-type motor if you're buying a new car.

Each Age of Mankind Had Its Collectors

It is always a matter of surprise to find what type of collector is interested in a particular subject. Whatever may be a man's profession, his hobby indicates his real self, says The Market for Exchange. A hobby should afford a complete change from one's workaday environment. For example, Lord Kitchener collected blue and white Chinese Kang-Hi porcelain. J. Pierpont Morgan enjoyed in vain to be as great an authority on mosque lamps as he was on railroad shares. The prince of Monaco, who derives his income from the green tables of Monte Carlo, expends it on deep-sea scientific research. That famous old character and king of collectors, Horace Walpole, turned his home, Strawberry Hill, into a museum that was the envy of museums.

But collectors are not the product of a recent age. They asserted themselves early in the history of mankind. It is to the collecting habits of certain ancients that we owe much of our knowledge of antiquity. Petronius, for instance, to whom each scrap of writing was as precious as a pearl, was an inveterate collector of classical writings. Domitian Tullius had such a collection of antique statues that a friend once said he bought a garden and was able to furnish it complete in one day from his store of treasures.

Petronius, of Nero's court, amassed treasures that Nero longed to possess. There is a story that Petronius, before his execution by the command of Nero, broke into bits a precious goblet from which he drank in order that, upon his death, Nero might not have the pleasure of possessing it. Lorenzo de Medici immortalized himself as a collector; and to Cosimo, his grandfather, are due those priceless classical and Oriental manuscripts which form the nucleus of the Laurentian library in Florence.

Out of Bounds

Marcel Knecht, French delegate to the Philadelphia convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World, said in his excellent English to an interviewer:

"Success in all lines means resourcefulness. Your successful man is your resourceful man. Yet there is such a thing as being too resourceful—overstepping the bounds, you know.

"Tom Jones was too resourceful. He said to his partner, John Brown:

"'Times are terrible. We'll bust in a week unless we have a—what a burglary.'

"'A burglary?' said Jack Brown. 'Why not the customary fire?'

"'No, no,' said Jones. 'A burglary's best. You see, if we have a burglary and the Insurance people don't pay up, why, anyhow, we don't lose nothin'.'"

Bandit Bee Never Reforms

Bees have everything except hospitals and jails, says Mrs. Hamilton, bee woman, according to Capper's Weekly. They have no hospitals because illness is a crime punishable by immediate execution. There are bandit bees, but bee policemen guard the hive entrance and drive the robbers away. A bee-fit bee, says Mrs. Hamilton, never reforms—like some human bandits we know. Bees have storage houses, water plants and nurseries where bee babies are fed on a special mixture of honey and water. Enemy bees, or other aliens that invade a hive, are immediately killed and the bodies thrown out. A mouse is stung to death, but being too large to eject is sealed in a tomb more enduring than King Tut's. Honey is not sweet, says Mrs. Hamilton. It is an acid that seems sweet.

THE PIGS' PICNIC

"GRUNT, grunt," said Brother Bacon.

"Squeal, squeal," said Miss Ham.

"Grunt, grunt," said Sammy Sausage and Grandfather Porky Pig cleared out his throat and said, "Grunt, grunt."

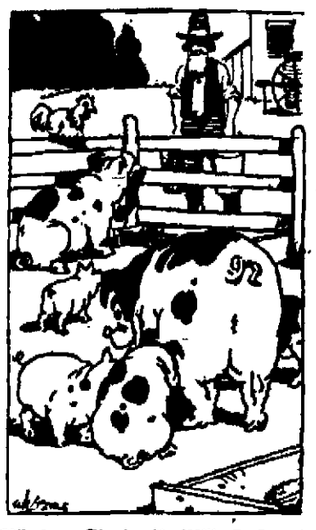
"Grunt, grunt," said Mrs. Pink Pig and Master Pink Pig shouted, "Grunt, grunt."

"Squeal, squeal," said Mrs. Pinky Pig, and Pinky Pig cried in a very shrill voice, "Squeal, squeal."

"Grunt, grunt," said Sir Percival Pork.

"Squeal, squeal," said Pinky Pig's mother.

"Grunt, grunt," said Sir Benjamin Bacon, and then the new little pigs



"What a Picnic It Will Be," said Brother Bacon.

in the Pig Pen squealed and cried, "What's happening?"

"Don't you see?" asked Brother Bacon.

"Haven't you good pig eyes?" asked Miss Ham.

"It's coming, don't you see?" asked Sammy Sausage.

"Your pig eyesight must be unusually poor," said Grandfather Porky Pig.

"I'm surprised at it," said Mrs. Pink Pig.

"So am I," said Master Pink Pig. "I see it coming!"

"Still," said Mrs. Pinky Pig, "it will be a good thing if their eyesight remains like that and then the rest of us will have more to eat and they will not get in our way."

"True," said Pinky Pig.

"A wise thought," said Pinky Pig's mother. "My son, Pinky, was never like that, though."

"We're all letting each other know it's coming," said Sir Percival Pork. "We're being very good to each other."

"The reason we're letting each other know," said Sir Benjamin Bacon, "is because we can't help but let each other know.

"We all saw the farmer start toward the pen with an extra meal. None of us could pretend we hadn't seen it.

"Then we saw him stop and we became nervous and we grunted aloud about it.

"Oh, it isn't because we are so eager to share it with each other. We simply couldn't help all seeing it and all grunting with delight at an unexpected meal."

"Grunt, grunt, what a picnic it will be," said Brother Bacon. "I hope he hasn't changed his mind."

"Oh, it will be a picnic indeed," said Miss Ham. "I, too, most certainly hope he hasn't changed his mind."

"It will be a picnic," said Sammy Sausage. "Oh, let us not think that he has changed his mind."

"Let us not be disappointed in a picnic," said Grandfather Porky. "That would be too cruel."

"We're surely to have the picnic," said Mrs. Pink Pig. "Having let us see him he surely would not disappoint us now."

"That would be too much," said Master Pink Pig. "Too much," agreed Mrs. Pinky Pig.

"I see him coming again," said Pinky Pig's mother.

"So do I," said Sir Percival Pork.

"So do I," said Sir Benjamin Bacon.

"So do we," squealed the little pigs.

"We needn't worry over their eyesight now," said Miss Ham.

But then came the farmer with the extra meal and the pigs had their picnic and joyfully ate!

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

TOADS AND RAIN

KILL a toad and it will rain tomorrow is a superstition which is general in the United States and Canada. In most sections the same is said with regard to killing a frog by stepping upon it, and the cattle-herders of Texas and the farmers of eastern Massachusetts also say that if a toad digs a hole and crawls into it there is sure to be rain the following day. In this superstitution, as in various others, the frog and the toad are regarded as practically the same creature—in fact the ancients, like most city dwellers of the present day, do not seem to have distinguished between them.

L. D. Burdick, the author of "Magic and Husbandry," thinks that "the intimate association of frogs and toads with springs and wet places first led to the idea that they could control the fall of rain."

In some savage tribes, when a drought is threatened, a frog or a toad is beaten until he brings on the desired showers. It was not unusual for the ancients to try bulldozing with their gods when sacrifices and prayers had failed to move them. Probably the killing of the frog or toad to insure rain is a relic of this idea. "Survey mankind from China to Peru" and we find this same belief in frogs and toads as rain-makers. The Peruvian Indians set up little images of them on mountain tops to bring on rain and in India they hang one on a tree for a few days "in order," says Burdick, "that the rain god may take pity and send a shower." The Indians of British Columbia kill one to bring on rain and the natives of southeastern Australia fear to kill one lest it bring on a flood. In short, this primitive superstition, existing from remotest ages, prevails today all over the world, more lasting and more widely believed in than all the systems of philosophy devised by the greatest human intellects.

Dollars Tint Flowers

Plenty of money has always gone into floral exhibitions, and this is literally true in England, where a florist has succeeded in getting delicate tints with the aid of silver dollars.

He drops silver coins in water in which the flowers are standing. Silver hydroxide is formed and the action of the chemical changes the natural color of the blossoms, says Popular Mechanics, giving them shadings not possible under natural conditions. After the coloring has proceeded to a satisfactory degree, the coins are removed and a few crumbs of slaked lime or mortar are added to fix the dye.

Famous English Oak

The Fairlop oak, with a trunk 49 feet in circumference, the growth of one centurion, stood in Hainault forest, Essex county, England. Beneath its branches a fair was long held on the first Friday in July. The famous tree was blown down in February, [illegible].

The Hotel Stenographer

By Rube Fulkerson

"KELLY, see that dame over there on the divan?" asked the Hotel Stenographer.

"Which one?" asked the House Detective.

"The one who looks like she had been poured into her dress and ran over because there was no one around to say 'when.'

"That dame is a living demonstration of the fact that you cannot have curly hair and everything else besides. If you get a rich husband and a limousine like she has you've got to take the fat that goes along with that kind of a life and sit around and munch caramels and worry for fear your husband has wandered off with some slim girl and left you in the lurch.

"If you marry a poor man and spend your time over the wash board, the ironing board and the dough board you can keep your figure and your husband, but what a back-breaking price you pay for it.

"Love is certainly the most disturbing thing in life, Kelly. There ought to be some way to avoid it, but nobody ever does. I ought to know because I have loved a lot of people in my time and when I see a lady who has passed her fortieth birth and bust day as the wife of a rich man I want to marry a poor one. When I see the wife of a poor man without any automobile or even a little white kitty skin fur coat with a monkey fur trim I know I couldn't stand that kind of a life.

"When the right bird lights on my shoulder I will marry. If he is rich I will determine not to look like that dame there, and if he is poor I will believe that my superior intelligence can show him how to get rich. I guess, after all, I better get married the same as the rest of them."

Today's Story in New York History

By Frederic A. Godcharles.

(Copyright, 1926, by the Author)

Great Territory Purchased From Six Nations at Fort Stanwix, November 5, 1768.

Notwithstanding the surrender to the Six Nations by the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania, in October, 1758, of "all the territory lying to the northward and westward of the Allegheny Mountains" white settlers continued to encroach on the hunting grounds of the Indians, particularly after the close of Pontiac's War. Proclamations were made against them by Governors of Pennsylvania and New York.

The activities of various projects by land speculators which had been started immediately after the peace of 1763, and the squatters who gave no heed to the proclamations, edicts or acts of the Assembly, caused many disputes between the whites and Indians as to the proper boundaries. The Indians showed by words and deeds that they were angered by the white man's inordinate "thirst for land".

At length in the summer of 1768, Sir William Johnson, as one of the last important acts of his life, determined to hold a great council with the Indians, not only for the purpose of "renewing the ancient covenant chain between the Indians and the English, but to establish a scientific frontier".

In preparation for this council some twenty large bateaux, laden with presents best suited to propitiate the Indians, had been conveyed to Fort Stanwix, now Rome, N. Y. From his agent at Albany Sir William ordered sixty barrels of flour, fifty barrels of pork, six barrels of rice and seventy barrels of provisions.

When the Congress opened 3,200 Indians were present, "each of whom," wrote Johnson, "consumes daily more than two ordinary men amongst us, and would be extremely dissatisfied if stinted when convened for business."

The Indians invited to the council began to assemble early in October, and by the middle of the month the various officials expected to be present were on the ground.

Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia and New York were represented by high officials. Eight Indian tribes, including the Delaware, the Shawnee and all the tribes of the Six Nations were present in large numbers, while other tribes were represented by small delegations. The Seneca went to this great conference armed as if going on the warpath.

Among the large number of private citizens attracted to Fort Stanwix were Rev. Jacob Johnson and Rev. Samuel Kirkland, missionaries among the Oneida Indians.

Sir William Johnson and the commissioners dined together. They formally drank various toasts, which frequently were given to the King's health, and on one or two occasions the language used gave offense to certain of the King's officers. Once a minister proposed a toast "not to the King of England, but to the King that hears our prayers". The trouble with the mother country was even then brewing.

Sir William opened the council by telling the Indians "the King was resolved to terminate the grievances from which they suffered for want of a boundary, and that the King had ordered presents proportionate to the nature and extent of the interests involved." The Indians retired and for several days were in private council.

When, finally, the deed was executed on November 5, 1768, it conveyed to the English a vast territory out of which states had been made. On that deed rests the title by purchase from the Indians, not only of a large area of New York, but nearly a third of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Kentucky.

Among those who witnessed its execution were Benjamin Franklin, and William Franklin, his natural son, at that time governor of New Jersey.

The actual sum paid in money for this imperial territory was about $50,600. The money came to the Indians at the time when they needed it on account of crop failure.

In the year following the treaty a Government surveyor, named Simon Metcalf, was sent to run the line of division. He began at Deposit, Broome county, and proceeded north to the Susquehanna, to the mouth of the Tiaderha, and up that stream to Oriskany.

Almost immediately patents were granted. In 1769 one was issued to John Butler, lying north of Butternut creek and reaching westward to the Unadilla river. Butler was a deputy under Johnson, and afterward became notorious as the Tory Colonel who followed Sir Guy Johnson to Canada, and then returned with his son, Walter, to write his history in the blood of many innocent persons. Among other patentees was Colonel George Croghan who got 100,000 acres, west from Otsego Lake, and later 18,000 acres near Cherry Valley. Croghan took steps to settle the large tract, but the enterprise caused his financial ruin, and William Cooper came to be the owner of a part of the patent upon which he founded Cooperstown. Had Croghan succeeded in his enterprise the world probably would never have heard of J. Fenimore Cooper's "Leather Stocking."

Noted Pianist Coming.

The appearance of a concert pianist of really high calibre is so rare in this city that when one is announced it becomes an event of importance. Hazel Carpenter, who has been secured by the Ladies' Aid Society of the First Reformed Church for a piano recital, is one of the greatest of the younger pianists now appearing before the public. Possessed of a most pleasing personality and playing with a wealth of expression and flawless technique, her recital will surely give an evening of great pleasure to those fortunate enough to hear her. This recital is given in the chapel of the First Reformed Church on Friday evening, November 12.

Women Outnumber Men

New York is one of half a dozen states in the Union in which there are more women than men, and this condition has existed for more than twenty years. In the United States as a whole women outnumber men by 4 per cent. The only states with a preponderance of women are New York, North Carolina, Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Massachusetts. In Nevada there are 130 men to every 100 women and in several states 120 or more men to 100 women.

Improving Big Waterway

Construction of a permanent bridge across the Rhine river has been decided upon by the German authorities. This will not only remove the old pontoon bridge, which has more or less obstructed Rhine navigation, but it will also serve in promoting the transportation development of southwest Germany and in removing certain traffic disadvantages in the north by attracting much traffic hitherto routed over indirect lines.

Activities at The High School

On Saturday afternoon at the Fair Grounds Kingston High School will play its second DUSO League game. The local boys will contest with the eleven from Port Jervis at this meeting and as the team has had much hard practice and from the showing that they made at Middletown many of the Kingston followers concede a victory for the high school.

The cross country team will travel to Goshen on Saturday and while the famous football team is fighting for honors the harriers will try to add a few favorable points to the school's athletic standing.

Mr. Webster, public school musical director, conducted the high school orchestra in assembly on Thursday morning while it rendered several delightful selections. The students enjoyed the program very much and especially the piece entitled "Dancing Moonbeams."

The members of the Kingston High School Burroughs Junior Audobon Society visited the old home of John Burroughs at Ulster Park on Wednesday. The Society was accompanied by three teachers, Miss Mauterstock, Miss Beetle and Dr. Boerker. As the party arrived at "Riverby" they were met by a granddaughter of the well-known naturalist. The club found many articles of interest in the study of the famous man and before returning home they also hiked to his mountain cabin, "Slabsides."

On Thursday the clarion call of M. Gerber, the basketball manager, resounded from one end of the edifice to the other for recruits to uphold the high school on the court. His efforts were accomplished when several vets of the last-year's team appeared for practice with many aspirants who will make their debut in the athletic circles this year.

Grid Clashes on Saturday's Card

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Physically fit and grimly defiant, eleven Harvard huskies sought the rest today that will give them the final edge for Princeton, a team that in the past has made football emergencies famous by rising to them.

A roaring undergraduate demonstration sent the Princeton eleven off to Cambridge last night to the chant of "Tiger, Tiger, Burning Bright" amid the firm conviction that everything was "Jake" with the junglecats. Once more the odds favor Harvard and again Jack Slagle, the triple threat, is fit for the fray, a combination of circumstances that has preceded overwhelming Princeton victories in the last two clashes of the historic big three rivals.

Slagle is punting again with old time vigor and power after a three week layoff from injuries and his short flashing passes are flipping over the line again with deadly accuracy. All the floundering of the Princeton team that lost to Navy, was held to a tie by Washington and Lee, and barely defeated Amherst and Lehigh, is forgotten by Princeton men who believe the Tigers on Saturday will rise to traditional heights for the big three season climax.

One of the most remarkable developments in football history has brought Harvard to favoritism for the clash tomorrow. After losing the first two games of the season, day by day absorption of coaching sent an improved team into the fray on each successive Saturday. A haphazard line and weak attack against Geneva grew to a mighty forward wall and driving attack that smothered Tufts 69 to 6 last week.

Few other clashes stand out on Saturday's card. The Pennsylvania squad is inhaling quantities of salt air at a golf club on the Jersey coast and limbering up muscles for the drive against Penn State. The blue and white outfit is quartered in Philadelphia, eager to wipe out past defeats in the struggle of the great rivals there Saturday.

New York University is in tip-top shape, with silk pants nicely brushed, for the hardest assignment of the year against Carnegie Tech. Syracuse has mastered the intricate Georgetown plays that have proven troublesome in the week's practice, and Pittsburgh's powerful eleven is on edge for West Virginia, defeated only by Missouri this season.

Silk pants, inaugurated by Knute Rockne to add speed to his Notre Dame team, have gained another convert in Holy Cross which tackles Fordham. Boston College, one of the undefeated clan, is primed for stiff opposition from the doughty Villanova youths.

Sport Briefs Of All Sorts

(By The Associated Press.)

Harold Hansen, manager of the Newark professional football team, has withdrawn his team from the American League because of financial difficulties. Three rainy week ends in succession have piled up losses, he said. Cleveland withdrew from the C. C. Pyle circuit earlier this week. Meanwhile Humbert Fugazy has announced that his Brooklyn Horsemen in the same league will share in the club's profits from now on although the same have been zero to date.

Earl Blue, the "little boy blue" of the ring, signed a contract yesterday to meet Paul Berlenbach, former light heavyweight champion, in a 12 round decision bout at Madison Square Garden in January. The St. Paul warrior staged a rugged battle with Yale Okun in his first Garden appearance several days ago. Berlenbach has not yet signed articles.

A report from Toronto discloses that Jack Adams, for many seasons a star with the St. Patricks in the National Hockey League, has been sold to the Ottawa Senators. The sum involved was not made known.

Cockroach a Standpatter

Scientists have discovered the humble, much despised cockroach ranks first in antiquity among all the creatures of the earth, and shows no change whatever from his ancestors of 200,000 years ago. If there is anything in this talk of evolutionists that creatures are ever changing, why is it that the cockroach has not changed? The answer is easy: the cockroach had no cupboards, pantries or ice boxes to get into centuries ago. —Capper's Weekly.

HUGGINS FINDS GEHRIG USEFUL

Columbia Player Fills Big Gap at Initial Sack

You can't freeze Lou Gehrig of the New York Americans in winter, and perhaps that is why he is so cool in summer when he faces the best pitchers of his circuit and gets hits off all comers.

Gehrig, a New Yorker, spends his winters at home. Even with the temperature at zero, Gehrig never wears an overcoat. He never wears a vest. At an early age, Gehrig swore a vendetta against both. No wonder he is so self-possessed against pitchers. Any man who can buck New York winter temperatures and cold, biting winds without an overcoat cannot be disturbed by a mere pitcher.

Miller Huggins picked up Gehrig from Columbia university several years ago. Gehrig, as a collegian, was a southpaw pitcher, also performed in the outfield and had some vagrant experience at first base. When Lou came to the Yankees, Huggins refused to waste Gehrig's potential power as a batter and decided to groom him to succeed Wallie Pipp at first base.

It was necessary for Gehrig to see some service other than on the Yankees bench. Therefore Huggins sent him to an Eastern league club. In 1925, Gehrig went South with the New York team, ripe enough to stay. When Wallie Pipp showed signs of fading, Gehrig went in. This year he was the regular first baseman from the start.

Lou "Buster" Gehrig.

Pitchers united in saying that Gehrig is as dangerous a batter as there is in the circuit. Some hate to see him come up there for Lou is partial to home runs and other varieties of extra base hits, any dimension of which is likely to break up a ball game if there are runners on base. Lou has a distressing habit, so far as the rival clubs are concerned, of busting one when runs are in the offing.

Brown-Eyed Persons Are Leaders at Golf Game

Golf instructors rather generally hold the view that brown-eyed persons play better golf than blue-eyed and gray-eyed persons.

John Bail, who probably has won more championships than any other golfer, has brown eyes. James Braid, Harry Vardon, Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones, Abe Mitchell and Cyril Tolley also are brown-eyed. The two great golfers among women, Miss Joyce Wethered and Miss Cecil Leitch, also have brown eyes.

Strong eyes are indispensable to golf, and players who are able to see well in a strong wind without having tears come into their eyes and who do not suffer from the glare of the sun have a great advantage.

But oculists fail to agree that brown eyes are necessarily stronger and better eyes for golf than those of other colors.

Chester I. Mead Modest as Iowa Football Star

The name of Chester I. Mead, who is Iowa line coach, stands beside that of Devine, Locke, Brookins and Laude as one of the most modest Hawkeye athletes. He was guard on the championship football teams of 1921 and 1922, and was so modest that he did not mind if credit for playing all of the classic Yale game went to another man.

Press reports from New Haven after that 6 to 0 Iowa victory carried the name of Kriz, a substitute in the Hawkeye lineup at the right guard position. When, on the Monday after the game, the Hawkeyes, heroes of the campus, returned to Iowa City, Mead was asked why he didn't play.

"I played all of the game," was his reply. "But what's the use of mentioning it as long as some man was in there doing the work."

Big Bill Edwards Is a Real Football Veteran

Bill Edwards, president of the American league of professional football clubs, who has been in the game since 1896, when a freshman at Princeton, where he was captain of the varsity in 1899, and who for years was a leading official of the East, has put the burden of playing clean football squarely up to his teams. "The traditions of football are old and sacred," Edwards says. "I shall have no pity for the player who shows any evidence of hurting for thrill by his actions on or off the field. See to it that you keep yourself above criticism."

COUPLE HAPPY IN MOUNTAIN HOME

Balmorhea, Texas.—His well-kept farm wholly concealed behind the mountains, and reached only by a tortuous, difficult road, H. H. Huelster hasn't been to town for seven years.

But with his good hausfrau, towering hillsides, fruit trees and books with which to commune, he has not missed the hum and throb of a city, though he has neither radio nor telephone.

Huelster at seventy-five and his wife at sixty-six have lived on this same mountain ranch for 44 years, and for the last 20 years he and his sons had been terracing the property. But his sons, of whom there are nine, and daughters, of whom there are two, are now gone, leaving the aged couple with their dog, cat, mountains and quietness.

Terracing Engineering Feat.

There probably is no other farm in Texas that will compare to that of the Huelsters in a terracing job, for in their case it was an engineering feat and the rock walls and gardens present an unusually picturesque sight, one that amazes the visitor in this far-off nook.

But the couple are happy. When the writer visited there recently Mrs. Huelster, active and vivacious, explained their philosophy thus:

"No, sir, I would not want to reside in a city. Why folks would know every dress owned and what I had for breakfast. Then there is the noise and crowds and no time for anything. Here, we can read, watch our fruit and flowers, and about twice a month some friends visit us."

She only came to Huelster's broad shoulder, but unlike him, at times will come to Balmorhea and attend a "movie."

"Now you all sit down and let me bring you some nice watermelon," she said. "We haven't seen any one for a month," and she darted into the house and then out, re-enforced with a large melon.

"Who was elected governor?" she inquired. This was some time after the last primary, and when informed that Dan Moody had won, she exclaimed: "My! My! So our woman governor lost, and I thought she was going to win."

Builder of His Home.

The Huelster homestead, all of stone, was built by the pioneer and his sons, and standing on a crest, overlooks the entire farm. May 29 a terrific freshet tore down the mountain, washed out a dam that had been built and flung about boulders weighing a ton. Huelster pointed some of them out.

"Are you not afraid when these heavy storms send such gigantic rocks so close to your home?" he was asked.

"Why, no, of course not," he scoffed. "We have lived here for 44 years. It does require some repair work, though."

He does some pretty hard work on terracing every day, work that would tax a man many years his junior.

Mountain folk, and pretty exclusive at that, one would expect to find in their well-filled library books concerning life other than mountains, adventure and the outdoors. But no, there were scores of books by Zane Grey, James Oliver Curwood and other writers whose stories deal with the old West and mountains. Zane Grey wrote a novel whose scenes are laid in the Davis mountains, and in it he mentions that the Southern Pacific reached Alpine about 1876.

"Grey is entirely wrong," declared Huelster. "I was here and know it came through about seven years after he said it did. I ought to know, for I saw them building the line and heard the whistle of the first train."

Wife is a Scientist.

Huelster reads English, German, French and Spanish with equal ease, while his wife is the scientist of the pair. She knows the common and scientific name of every flower, vegetable and insect on the place.

"The names in common usage are just slang," she said. "See that beautiful butterfly on that leaf? It's a giant of the lepidoptera family. Now it has alighted on that verbena, only its real name is lippia citriodora."

The linguist wore overalls and the scientist a house dress when the surprise visit was made. Finally, a photograph of them was suggested. Then the Huelsters disclosed that no one ever had taken a photograph of them, though back in 1893 some one took a picture of the farm for use at the world's fair in Chicago.

"No, sir, I don't want my picture taken," said the husband.

"I will," said the wife and she hustled into the house, sallying forth a few minutes later resplendent in a silk dress. Huelster couldn't stand for this. He succumbed, went into the house without a word and soon came out, dressed appropriately for the occasion. And they stood together, these rugged pioneers of rugged mountains and the picture was taken.

Back in the days when outlaws and Comanches held sway in this section, when the stage coach ran between San Antonio and El Paso Huelster, then a young man, had a job at Balmorhea of changing the mules when the coach arrived, while his wife cooked meals for the travelers.

It was not many years ago when the Huelster family supplied the entire valley with its vegetables and fruits. Now they do no shopping and one of their sons makes a weekly trip, carrying staple groceries to the farm.

Mrs. Huelster recalls events by remembering which child was the baby.

"Let me see. Oh, yes, Fritz was the baby when that picture was taken back in '93," she said.

It was not long since oil was discovered on the Huelster farm. The rancher was drilling for water, the oil spoiled the water, so he plugged her up in disgust. He doesn't need oil. He has his mountains.

Famous Painting Missing From Church in Mexico

Morelia, State of Michoacan, Mex.—Mystery is attached to the strange disappearance from the wall of the parish church of Tzlutzuntzan, a historic village situated on the shore of Lake Patzcuaro, of the celebrated painting "The Descent From the Cross."

This canvas is regarded in art circles as being one of the most valuable masterpieces on the American continent, due to the established fact that it came from the brush of Titian, who was the royal patron of Philip II, King of Spain.

For long periods the church was closed to the eyes of visitors and many legends sprang up concerning the wonderful painting which maintained its marvelous beauty and color, despite age and exposure. When officers of the federal government went to the village a few days ago to make an inventory of the church property, they found that the painting had been removed from the wall. It is the popular belief here that the painting was removed by order of the church authorities and secreted, for the time being, to prevent it from falling into the hands of the government.

Going to Dye

New York.—Miss Frances Joy and Miss Inez Harrison are not dying to go to Europe; they're going to Europe to dye. In one of their trunks are a wash boiler and 13 pails. The girls, who are in their early twenties, have made some money coloring silk and are going to demonstrate their method abroad.

Too Proud to Ask Aid, Woman Nearly Starves

New York—Too proud to keep boarders when they proved objectionable, although they were her only source of income, Mrs. Yetta Blumstein, sixty years old, almost starved.

When neighbors found her in her two-room apartment, she was so weak she was unable to move, and so ill she could not walk.

According to neighbors, Mrs. Blumstein supported herself by taking boarders and doing housework. A man and a woman who had been boarding in Mrs. Blumstein's home were objectionable, so she asked them to move. After them, a man moved into her home. The new boarder also was objectionable, and Mrs. Blumstein ordered him to move.

This left her without an income, but she did not ask help of anyone and none knew of her serious financial circumstances. When neighbors saw her recently she seemed to be well.

Mrs. Blumstein's first husband is dead, according to neighbors, and her second husband was taken two months ago to the Montifiore home. After neighbors learned of her condition they had her removed to Bellevue hospital.

Find "Siamese Twins" Shared Only One Organ

Minneapolis, Minn.—Only one organ was owned in common by Lucy and Bessie Medich, "siamese twins," who died within a few minutes of each other at a local hospital. This was the bladder, it was discovered at the post mortem at the hospital.

Lucy died of pneumonia and Bessie, her sister, joined to her from birth, about five months ago, died of shock and blood poisoning.

With the exception of the bladder, which served both bodies, every vital organ of the bodies was complete in each individual.

This possession of two almost complete sets of internal organs, permitted, surgeons believe, Bessie to enjoy perfect health throughout the long illness of Lucy from pneumonia.

The two were the children of Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Medich, South Bend, Ind., and it is expected that the bodies will be taken to that city for burial.

They were fastened together by a rather narrow band at the hips, the heads being at opposite ends of the double body.

British Woman Finds Quarrying Fascinating

Hensall, Yorkshire, England.—Mrs. Anne Greaves is Britain's only woman quarry manager.

"It may seem that quarrying is a strange business for a woman, but why shouldn't women run quarries?" asked Mrs. Greaves. "Of course I have a foreman and plenty of men workers to assist me, but I go into the quarries myself and inspect the seams and direct the methods to be used in getting out the sand and gravel.

"Stone has become so expensive that I have developed a plant which makes artificial stone and am doing a good business. I find quarrying is a very fascinating occupation."

Wales Does Charleston and Pays Cabaret Bill

London.—The prince of Wales has mastered the Charleston.

At a popular supper resort the prince danced the Charleston many times. Observers said it was a pleasure to watch him and his partner; that the dancing of other couples seemed clumsy in contrast.

Those sitting at tables adjoining that of the prince observed that when the bill was presented it was Wales who paid it.

Little Ruth Thankful

Little Ruth, age four years, was given a box of old ribbons and flowers and an old hat with which to amuse herself while her mother went downtown. She trimmed the hat and put it on her head and surveyed herself from all sides in the large mirror, then remarked softly to herself, "I look pitty now, thank goodness."

Advance in Air Travel

Aerial "feeder" lines, maintained by light and relatively inexpensive airplanes, are being rapidly established throughout Germany. These "feeder" lines collect air passengers from the provincial towns and take them direct to a big air-route terminal on a schedule which permits the passenger to catch the air expresses to points all over Europe. Eventually these subsidiary lines will take the passengers from the terminal airdromes to their homes but the facilities are not yet sufficient for this. The first of these routes was opened by the norddeutscher Luftverkehr, A. G. on the Bremen-Hamburg route, connecting with Berlin. It is planned to have about twenty airplanes in this new service.

Billions in Pennies

Approximately 10 nickels and 40 pennies are in use for each individual in the United States. Total circulation of nickels is 1,225,000,000, and of pennies 4,000,000,000, and the two kinds of coins contain $4,000,000 pounds of copper, according to a statement by the Copper and Brass Research association. Factors which have contributed to the great demand in this country for nickels and pennies apparently have been the advent of chain stores, the growing volume of business in 5 and 10-cent stores, the requirement of change to ride in street cars, increased use of slot machine venders and the increase in circulation of newspapers requiring a greater amount of change than formerly.

Floating "Drummer"

A floating French department store which will visit the coasts of North and South America carrying the latest models and novelties will sail in November. The ship expects to be gone two years and will make calls of several days in most of the important ports of Canada and the United States for the purpose of getting wholesale orders for French goods. A first-class restaurant under direction of expert chefs will be on the boat.

The Biggest Leased Wire System in the World

What The Associated Press Is

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS is an association of persons representing more than 1200 morning, evening and Sunday newspapers scattered throughout the United States, Alaska, Cuba, Costa Rica, Mexico, Hawaii, Philippines, Porto Rico, and Central and South America.

Its sole object is the collection and distribution of the important news of the world for publication in its member papers.

News of all other countries in the world is gathered by staff men in centralized bureaus and in the field. In addition, there is available, through exclusive news-exchange contracts with the important foreign news agencies, all of the news that they gather.

80,000 individuals report news to THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

This news is distributed by leased wires. There are over 131,000 miles of leased wires in this great system.

It is the greatest clearing house for news in the world. The number of words daily received and transmitted at each of the more important offices is over 75,000—the equivalent of 60 columns of the average newspaper.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS has no capital stock: it makes no profits and declares no dividends. The revenues reach an annual aggregate of $7,000,000 derived wholly from weekly assessments levied pro rata upon the members.

The members of THE ASSOCIATED PRESS are persons of every conceivable political, economic and religious advocacy. They demand accurate news: notwithstanding their varying opinions, they are united in one thing—that THE ASSOCIATED PRESS news service shall be wholly free from partisan activity: the news must be important, clean, and free from any tinge of propaganda. To this end the news in intentionally and necessarily subjected to the criticism of fifteen directors, twelve hundred members and, most important, the reading public.

It is the theory of THE ASSOCIATED PRESS that, in a self-governing country like ours, the citizens, if given the facts, must be able to form their own opinion and judgments respecting them.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Mrs. Sarah Kathryn Davenport, formerly of this city, died Monday, October 25, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Louis Simon, at Richmond Hill, N. Y. Besides her daughter, Mrs. Simon, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. John MacDade and Mrs. Lucy Bishop, also one brother, William O'Reilly of this city. Funeral services were held at the Church of Our Lady of Perpetual Health, R. C., at Richmond Hill, which was largely attended by relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, New Jersey and Kingston. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery, Richmond Hill. There were many floral offerings.

Mrs. Magdalena Winter, wife of the late John Winter, died Thursday evening following a short illness. Mrs. Winter was born in Germany and came to this country nearly 60 years ago and for the past 40 years has been a resident of this city, where she had endeared herself to a large circle of friends. For many years she had been a faithful and devout member of St. Peter's Church. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. August Spader, and three sons, John J., Joseph A., and Augustus J. Winter, all of this city. Funeral from the late home, No. 99 Foxhall avenue, Monday morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 o'clock at St. Peter's Church with a requiem Mass for the repose of her soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery. The Society of Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Church will hold a prayer service at the late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The funeral of Miss Margaret Costello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Costello of 65 Staples street, was held from the family residence on Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and at St. Mary's Church at 9:30 where a requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. William H. Kennedy for the repose of her soul. The funeral cortege was large and a profusion of beautiful flowers testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held. During the Mass the chancel choir under the direction of Professor William H. Reiser was assisted by Herman LaTour and sang responses to the Mass. At the offertory "Pie Jesu" was rendered by Mr. LaTour and at the close of the services he sang "That Beautiful Land on High." As the remains were borne from the church the choir sang "Jesus, Jesus Come to Me." The bearers were Lawrence Maucler, Peter Torrigan, Raymond Hoolihan, A. J. Weber, Charles Dunn and Frank Gallagher. Interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery where committal services were conducted by the Rev. William H. Kennedy.

Dance at K. of C. Hall.

The dance to be held for the benefit of St. Ann's Church, Sawkill, will be held this evening in the K. of C. Hall, Broadway. Everything is in readiness for the event, the hall having been artistically decorated and refreshments secured to delight the tastes of those who wish to partake. The music will be furnished by Harry Maisenhelder's Orchestra. Dancing will be in order from 8 o'clock until 1 a. m.

Dance at Maennerchor Tonight.

A dance will be held in Maennerchor Hall tonight under the auspices of the Jolly Boys. The music will be furnished by the Ten Californians. The dance will start at 9 o'clock and there will be Charleston and Fox Trot contests.

Dramatic Club Meeting.

There will be a meeting of St. Mary's Dramatic Club this evening at 7:30 in the school hall.

Historic Portrait

A portrait of Benjamin Franklin was carried away from Franklin's home in Philadelphia by Major Andre. Andre gave it to General Grey, who took it to England. Earl Grey, a descendant, sent the picture back to the United States with the request that it be placed in the White House, and President Roosevelt agreed to do so.

DIED.

WINTER—Entered into rest Thursday evening, November 4, 1926, Magdalena, wife of the late John Winter.

Relatives and friends are invited to attend the funeral from her late home, No. 99 Foxhall avenue, Monday morning at 9 o'clock and 9:30 o'clock at St. Peter's Church where a requiem Mass will be offered for the repose of her soul. Interment in the family plot in St. Peter's cemetery. The members of the Society of Christian Mothers of St. Peter's Church are invited to attend a prayer service at the late home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Fear Two Men Were Drowned

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Two men are believed to have been drowned early today when two barges in tow of the tug Barrington broke loose during a storm on Lake Erie.

The Barrington was en route from Cleveland to Buffalo. The barges broke away between Conneaut, Ohio, and Erie, Pa. The Barrington wirelessed that she was searching for the lost barges and that coastguard vessels had arrived on the scene.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market was accompanied by a broader and brisker demand, indicating to some observers an expansion in public participation. Subsidence of bear pressure and the apparent abundance of funds available on call loans stimulated pool operations in various speculative groups.

Higher dividends by a number of small industrial companies in the last few days revived hopes of similar action on some of the industrial and railroad leaders before the end of the year. The only business news of any consequence was a small recession in steel ingot production in the first week of the month, but this was offset by the announcement that subsidiaries of the U. S. Steel Corporation had received orders for 180,000 tons of rails in the last week of October.

Chesapeake and Ohio, which lost 2 points in the early trading, was an exception to the general upward trend of the railroad shares. Atlantic Coast Line was bid up 3 points, Frisco two and a number of others a point or more.

Rival of activity and strength in Warner Pictures "A" followed the announcement that negotiations were nearing completion for the showing of its Vitaphone device in several of the large theatres controlled by Famous Players and others. Baldwin and U. S. Steel common led the advance in the standard industrials, with sharp gains also being recorded by a number of specialties such as Savage Arms, Manhattan Electrical Supply, Remington Typewriter and Commercial Solvents "B", all of which sold 3 to 6 points above yesterday's final quotations.

Rosendale Church Supper.

The ladies of the Rosendale Baptist Church will serve a hot roast beef supper with mushrooms at the church on Tuesday evening, November 9. The proceeds from this supper will be applied on the payment of the new church roof. Tickets may be had of Mrs. John J. Linson, 173 Elmendorf street.

A Cake Sale.

The Junior League of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church, will hold a cake and cookie sale at the store of James McEntyre on Clinton avenue Saturday afternoon starting at 1 o'clock.

Heed New York Wet Mandate

Ten of New York's Congressmen Will Follow Mandate of Prohibition Referendum and Vote For Repeal or Modification of Volstead Act.

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Ten of New York state's 43 congressmen have notified the New York Herald-Tribune, in response to an inquiry, that they would follow the mandate of the prohibition referendum and vote for repeal or modification of the Volstead Act.

All of the congressmen, with the exception of James M. Mead of Buffalo, are from New York city. They are John J. Kindred, Emanuel Cellar, S. P. Prall, Samuel Dickstein, John J. O'Connor, Sol Bloom, Royal H. Weller, Anthony J. Griffin and Frank Oliver.

Gale H. Stalker of Elmira telegraphed that he would ignore the referendum and continue efforts to strengthen the Eighteenth Amendment.

Will Not Follow Mandate.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 5 (AP).—Representative-Elect John Taber of the 36th district declared today that he would not follow the mandate of the state referendum on modification of the Volstead law.

He said: "The referendum does not mean anything. Even though the vote indicated that Cayuga county was for the referendum, the 36th district is not for it. Drys did not vote on the question as the referendum vote in comparison with the head of the ticket shows."

PORT EWEN.

Port Ewen, Nov. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Munson have moved into their new home, corner Bayard street and Lampman avenue.

The members of the Epworth League Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church had a masked Hallowe'en party in the church house Tuesday evening. Witches, fortune tellers and ghosts were in evidence. After masks had been removed many surprises were in store for all. Bountiful refreshments were served, games played and readings and a very pleasant and jolly evening spent. There were 36 members present.

All those who have articles for the rummage sale of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church will kindly leave them at the residences of Mrs. John Lynn on Hamilton street or Vinal Lefever on Broadway. The sale commenced today and will continue this week.

The rummage sale under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church, began Thursday and will continue this week. Those who have articles to spare please leave them at Mrs. John Lynn's or Mrs Vinal LeFever's.

The Christian Endeavor missionary drive is on. The society is planing to introduce Christ into every home and is presenting the Messenger's scripture text calendars for approval.

Mrs. John Holliday, who has been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Stadt, in New York city, has returned to her home on Bowne street.

There will be a meeting of the plot owners of the Port Ewen Cemetery at Pythian Hall Saturday afternoon, November 6, at 2 o'clock, for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year and to transact any other business that may come before the meeting.

The Hallowe'en party, which was held at Polhelm's Orchard Tea Room by the Christian Endeavor Society, Tuesday evening, November 2, was well attended and was a great success. Great credit is due the social committee for the room and table decorations which added greatly to the appearance of the occasion.

This evening the local union of Christian Endeavor will hold its big annual rally in the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, Kingston, at 8 o'clock. There will be games after the business meeting and a good time is promised to all who attend. It is hoped that there will be a large delegation from the Port Ewen Reformed Christian Endeavor Society. All those who are planning to go will meet at Spinneweber's Garage at 7:30 p. m.

SEVERAL KILLED IN NICARAGUA QUAKE

Managua, Nicaragua, Nov. 5 (AP).—Several persons were killed and severe property damage was caused early today in the worst earthquake since April, 1898. The duration of the quake was 50 seconds and the tremors were general throughout Nicaragua.

The National palace and the cathedral in Managua were damaged by the shock. The quake was severe in the department of Masaya near the Masaya volcano. Many houses were destroyed at Santiago.

"Al Smith's Secret."

Evangelist Harold Strathearn will speak on the subject of "Al Smith's Secret," Saturday night in the Wurts Street Baptist Church. A musical concert will be given before the address. Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Strathearn will give his popular lecture, "Is America Doomed." A large mass meeting for everybody is being arranged to hear this address, which deals with American prosperity, and points to the danger signals now visible. The meeting will open at 3 o'clock with special singing by a large chorus choir, and the special feature will be the solo by Dorothy Strathearn who possesses a powerful lyric soprano voice.

$71,895 Hidden In Janitor's Home

Los Angeles, Nov. 5 (AP).—Theft of $74,000 from the Los Angeles branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco was disclosed by the police here today with the arrest of Wesley Davis, negro janitor, and recovery of $71,895 hidden in his home.

A new automobile which Davis declared he purchased with a part of the money also was seized.

He said he found the money in a bundle on the floor of one of the cages.

Abandon Hope for Entombed Miners

Ishpeming, Mich., Nov. 5 (AP).—The faint hope that at least one of the 51 miners entrapped in the cave-in at the Barnes-Hecker iron mine here might still be alive was abandoned today when investigation revealed the impossibility of human life surviving the crush of the tons of mud and water which filled the pit.

The hope was based on the possibility that Peter Durocha in charge of a hydraulic pump house at the bottom of the shaft, may have been at work in the airtight and waterproof compartment.

Mine officials, however, ascertained that the air lines to the pump house were destroyed. The terrific force of the cave-in would have destroyed the house anyway, they said.

Society Notes

Shower for Miss Mockabee.

Tuesday evening a delightful shower was given Miss Mae Mockabee in honor of her approaching marriage to Richard Warren. The members of the F. T. T. Class of St. James M. E. Church appropriately celebrated the event at the home of Miss Julia Neice on Washington avenue.

Benjamin-Brown.

Walter J. Benjamin and Miss Bertha Brown, both of Highland, were united in marriage at the parsonage of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church by the Rev. A. S. Cole on Thursday night at 9 o'clock. They were attended by the parents of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Benjamin of New York city. The newly-married couple will reside in Highland.

Beautiful Work Done by Spanish Potters

Ceramic arts flourish throughout Spain, partly because fine clays are common and also because the Spaniard is an expert potter.

The beautiful reproduced in the shapes of Etruria, as of Phoenicia and Egypt, are old pottery of the Iberian regions. The finest and most extensive use of ceramics is seen in the southerly provinces, where house floors, walls, and much of the garden may be adorned with brightly colored pottery, tiles. The vases, cups, plates and other domestic articles, made in such regions as Sevilla, Granada, Talavera and Valencia, are widely known, while the coarse but beautifully shaped and brilliantly colored work of Murcia, the production of local peasantry, is a delight to the eye and hand. No Greek or Roman vases are more beautiful than those of modern Spain, based upon the work of long-forgotten predecessors in the art.—London Times.

Little of Wild Life Is British in Origin

Very few of the animals best known in our countryside are British in origin. Indeed, with the possible exception of the fox, the badger, the otter, the hare, and the red deer, there are today few, if any, survivors of animals native to this country.

The rabbit, for example, was not known here in early Christian days. It is believed to have originated in Spain; very old coins have been found in that country imprinted with the figure of a rabbit. Rats are quite foreign to these shores, though they are now too firmly established here. The English black rat came from the Continent eight centuries ago.

Both the fallow and roe deer came to us from abroad, the first from Norway, the second from Asia. The pheasant found its way here in Roman times. The partridge, on the other hand, is perhaps the most British of all our game birds.—London Tit-Bits.

Axolotls

Some time ago Prof. Julian Huxley of London made experiments with the progeny of axolotls. Axolotls, which are found in America, have tails like fish, but they have lungs in addition to gills. Professor Huxley injected them with thyroid gland extract and brought them to maturity in six months. Further experiments have now been made by Doctor Spaul of London university, who by a similar process to that of Professor Huxley, has changed an aquatic axolotl into a land-living axolotl. The transformed axolotl is on view at the aquarium and may be compared with the aquatic species in an adjoining tank. The aquatic axolotl has three gills on each side, but in the transformed specimen these completely disappeared.

Early Educational Books

The horn books used in education in England from early times down to the Eighteenth century, were tablets on which were inscribed the alphabet, the nine digits, etc., and the tablets were protected by covers made of thin plates of transparent horn.

Management and Care for Cows

To Establish High Producing Herd Best to Start With Small Number.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"The best way for a man of moderate means to establish a high-producing herd of dairy cattle is to start with a small number of cows and use good pure-bred bulls," says the United States Department of Agriculture in Farmers' Bulletin 1470-F, "Care and Management of Dairy Cows."

Fall Freshening Favored.

In experiments conducted by the department, cows that freshened in the fall months ranked highest in average yearly production of milk and butter fat, in cost of feed, and in income over cost of feed. Those that freshened in winter ranked second in these respects. On the average, those that calved in the spring and summer produced the least milk and butter fat and returned the smallest income over cost of feed. Several advantages in having cows freshen in the fall are as follows: Butter fat usually brings a higher price during the fall and winter months; labor is easier to obtain; and there is more time to care for the calves and for a large supply of milk. The dairyman who sells his milk to a city retail trade should have his cows freshen at all seasons of the year so as to keep up a steady, constant flow of milk. However, this point is not so important for dairymen who separate the milk, sell cream, and use skim milk for feeding purposes.

Tests by the department also show the relation between the yield of milk and the frequency and regularity of milking.

Keep Dairy Records.

The importance of keeping records on a dairy farm is also stressed in the new bulletin. Such records, by showing feed consumed and production of milk and butter fat, make it possible to feed intelligently and eliminate inferior animals.

Exercising cows by making them walk three miles a day was found to cause a greater feed consumption and a slightly higher percentage of butter fat in the milk, but the quantity of milk remained about the same. So far as production is concerned, a cow needs no more exercising than she will get by walking at will about the small yard.

The bulletin also contains much information relative to breeding, feeding, diseases, common ailments of cows and their treatment, types of dairy buildings and sanitation. A copy of the publication can be obtained free as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Caustic Is Very Useful in Dehorning the Calves

The best time to dehorn calves, is when they are from one to two weeks old. The following is a practical way to do it: Clip the hair away from the little horn "button"; where the horn starts and rub the "button" with caustic potash. Rub until a spot about the size of a dime appears red, but not bleeding.

Don't use too much caustic, and put it on the "button" only. Don't turn the calf out in the rain immediately after putting the caustic on; for this will wash the caustic off of the "button," and it is liable to get into the calf's eyes.

The caustic can be obtained at almost any drug store for a few cents. Do not handle it with the bare hands; use an old glove or something of the sort.

Caustic must be kept in an air-tight container, in order to preserve its strength.

How Are Calves Raised Profitably for Market?

Many farmers think that at the present price of milk and veal, it does not pay to produce veal, therefore, many calves are "deaconed." On the average it will take ten pounds of milk to produce one pound of gain in a calf. If milk is $2.00 per hundredweight, then every pound of gain costs 20 cents. If it were not for realizing on the original weight of the calf, every pound of veal would be produced at a loss. Suppose a calf weighs 75 pounds when it is born, and by feeding it to marketable age you increase its weight to 150 pounds. You have increased its weight 75 pounds, and it has taken at least 150 pounds of milk, worth $15. You sell the calf for 14 cents a pound, or $21. You have realized $6 for the original weight of the calf, less the expense of feeding and the cost of marketing, for had you "deaconed" the calf you would have received nothing for the carcass, except, possibly, 50 cents for the hide.

Pack in Light Room

Always pack eggs in a light room. This allows for the detection of any that are thin-shelled or have cracks. Eggs are sometimes found which have shells that were cracked before they were laid. They have been partly repaired but the cracks still show. An egg of this kind is easily overlooked in a dark room but may be seen in the light. It pays to pack a uniform product. If there are two grades, keep the good and the poor separate, otherwise you may get the low price for all of them.

Argumentative Form

Colonel Bailey says, in the Boston Post, that "the ordinary mother [illegible] was more powerful in argument than the Twentieth-century article, due to her habit of having a slipper or a [illegible] handy [illegible]."

HOW—

TREE GETS SUSTENANCE IS WONDER OF NATURE.— A tree pumps water to its crown, even though that crown be 300 feet or more in the sky. Then it completes the cycle of circulation by sending the water back down as sap, loaded with food to build up the living part of the trunk, the sheath of new bark. "Moreover," says the National Geographic society, "the tree is a self-operating chemical laboratory possessing trade secrets yet unknown to the best human chemists. With water, mineral matter and carbonic gas from the air it manufactures its food, part of which is stored away as wood. If you would know how much of this product is made out of air and water and how much is mineral matter sluiced through root and cell canals from the ground, cut a block of wood, weigh it, burn it, and then weigh the ashes. The difference is what a tree manufactures out of insubstantial air and water. The warmth from the fire is literally canned sunshine released by combustion.

"The tree's chemical laboratory requires, in place of gas and electrical power, light and heat from the sun. So it spreads a net of marvelous mesh to catch the sunlight and heat. Man calls the net leaves. While it is easy to visualize the capture of sun heat by a tree and its release on one's shins from a fireplace, it is more difficult to appreciate the heat we get from prehistoric trees. Fossil forms in coal show that trees were important and perhaps the chief dwellers of the rank jungles that laid down their lives in the carboniferous age to be fuel for 1926. The tree forms of that era were different from those we know; many of them gigantic ferns and palm-like trees. But the pines, which control half of the world's forests today, are close relatives of prominent prehistoric families." —Pathfinder Magazine.

How Bees Dispose of Drones When Useless

Grim is the yearly murder of the drones in a hive of honey bees. The worker bees told off to this most socialistic job give one the impression that they dislike the duty, but obey a categorical imperative. It was not till last year, while observing a very strong swarm of crossed Italian and English bees, that I discovered how—in many cases—the death is compassed.

The small worker attacks, as everyone knows, the base of the wing, just above the hinge, and continues to file away at it, however violently the heavy drone hauls her hither and thither over the alighting board or among the grasses.

But very often the work is not completed. The drone shakes himself free and sets out triumphantly on wings more powerful than any worker possesses. He enjoys a last ecstasy. The fling has so weakened the shaft that of a sudden it breaks, and the drone crashes like a broken airplane —the most saddening sight the eyes can behold—or a bird shot in midflight. The fall even of this little and now useless insect is depressing to watch; but there is certainly no pain, as we understand the word either in anticipation or in fact.—Sir W. Beach Thomas in the Atlantic Monthly.

How Carcassonne Got Name

"Charlemagne was besieging the city," says Yvonne Schultz, in La Petite Illustration, Paris. "The inhabitants were in the grip of famine, but a certain Dame Carcas still cherished a live pig and several measures of grain. So she gave all the grain to the animal at one time and, when the pig had consumed it, she carried it alive to the ramparts and hurled it over.

"Of course the enemy immediately captured the pig, slit its throat and opened it. But, finding the stomach full of undigested wheat, they said to one another: 'How are we ever going to conquer by starvation a city which is so well provisioned that it feeds wheat to its pigs as though they were Christians!' So, disheartened, they raised the siege and Dame Carcas ran joyously and rang the bells (sonna les cloches). Hence, you see, 'Carcassonne.'"

How Insects Travel

Scientists have solved the old problem of how insects reach distant islands in the ocean. They are wafted upwards by ascending currents of warm air, and there caught by the rapid currents and transported hundreds of miles from their place of origin. In the upper regions there are currents with a velocity of 100 miles an hour, so that it does not take long for an insect to travel great distances without apparent effort.—Grit.

How Graham Flour Came

Graham flour is named for Sylvester Graham, a New England dietarian who, in the first half of the Nineteenth century, was well known as an advocate of the use of unbolted flour which now bears his name.

How Blood Circulates

It is said that all the blood in the body goes in and out of the heart once every minute.

[illegible] Remembrance

Without children there is no remembrance possible. When both children and memory are vital, when the general [illegible] of man is clear, unbroken, true, there may come a modern [illegible] as memorial of the past.—Carlyle.

CUTTING CORNERS SAVES BIG MONEY

People in various sections have sometimes commented on the waste of good farm land caused by cutting off corners on trunk highways. The safety and convenience of road users is the main reason for cutting corners, but the saving in road building costs usually more than offsets the value of the land, according to a bulletin from the Minnesota state highway department.

A curve with a 200-foot radius makes the road 86 feet shorter than if it were built to a square corner. The extra land needed is less than half an acre, and may cost from $25 to $100. The saving on an ordinary grading and graveling job will usually pay for the land, and if the road is to be paved, shortening the distance 86 feet will save about $430, several times as much as the cost of the land.

Similar or greater savings may be effected by the relocation of longer stretches of road. If the distance can be shortened mile by relocation before a road is to be paved, there will be a saving of about $30,000. This will pay for several miles of new right of way and grading.

Using the old road while building and paving a new one may also save thousands of dollars in detour maintenance. Where it is necessary to reshape and gravel a side road for use as a detour, the expense may run up to $2,500 or $3,500 per mile. If the regular road can be used while the permanent trunk highway is being built on new location, a large part of this detour expense can be saved.

Elimination of railroad grade crossings is another factor which often cause relocation of a road before it is permanently improved. Since the state took over the trunk highway system, 233 grade crossings have been eliminated by relocation of the road. On Trunk Highway No 1, alone, between the Twin Cities and Duluth, 18 crossings have been eliminated by this method. On this road there is 38.3 miles of new location, between White Bear and Carlton.

The most important factor, however, is the saving to road users. Reducing the distance between two towns a mile or two may mean nothing to people driving for pleasure, but the proportion of vehicles used for business is constantly increasing, and each mile saved to them means from 5 cents a mile on a light passenger car to 25 cents on a big truck or bus. On a road which carries 2,000 vehicles a day, if only 1,000 are traveling on business, and if we figure only the minimum saving of 5 cents per mile, shortening the distance one mile will mean an aggregate saving of $50 per day or $18,250 in a year.

Automobiles and Trucks Yield More Road Funds

Due to the unexpected productivity of the motor vehicle and gasoline taxes, the state highway department this year will have about $2,000,000 available for new construction above the original estimate for 1926, when the law was passed by the legislature in 1925, says the St. Paul Pioneer Press. The gasoline tax is yielding about $2,500,000 for each cent per gallon, instead of only $2,000,000; the license fees will run close to $10,000,000 instead of $9,150,000. The highway fund thus comes to about $15,000,000, exclusive of federal aid and new construction will amount to about $9,500,000 instead of only $7,800,000.

This gratifying result has been made possible because more gasoline was consumed and more automobiles put into use than had been anticipated, which is as much as to say, because there was more need for good roads. Automobile and truck owners, with the fund on its present basis, are paying for the roads they use, and there is accordingly a certain correspondence between the demands they make on the highway department and the funds which it has on hand to meet the demand. The state highway system is making satisfactory progress, but it is not going ahead any more rapidly than necessary to take care of the increasing burden placed upon it.

Good Roads Squibs

This nation has 113,000 miles of paved or surfaced highways.

An American firm is to pave 300 miles of modern highways in San Salvador.

During the past five years Canada has spent $300,000,000 on road construction.

Twenty four thousand miles of highway, enough to belt the earth, are scheduled for construction during 1926 by the various states. This is expected to cost about $400,000,000.

• • •

John N. Mackall, chairman of Maryland state roads commission, believes that the state maximum speed law should be supplanted with a minimum speed law and slow-moving vehicles should be barred from main traveled roads during hours of heavy traffic.

Banished Losing Party

Active partisanship in the Bianchi, a political faction which was prominent in the Guelph-Ghibelline feuds in Tuscany at the beginning of the Thirteenth century, was the cause of Dante's banishment from Florence in 1301.

Ottinger Has 8,897 Plurality

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Albert Ottinger, Republican attorney-general of New York state, was re-elected Tuesday, unofficial final tabulation of the state vote showed today.

With only five small districts of the 7,818 in the state unreported, Ottinger had a plurality of 8,897 over his Democratic opponent, Benjamin Stolz. The missing districts are in Brome, Clinton, Suffolk and Warren counties and are all normally Republican.

Who's Cuckoo?

"A schoolboy," said the naturalist, "wrote this:

"'The cuckoo is a bird that lays other birds' eggs in its own nest and vice voce.'

"Well, that is all wrong, of course; but naturalists are all wrong invariably when in talking about the cuckoo they give it a bad name.

"For a new truth has been discovered about the cuckoo. When the cuckoo lays its eggs in the nests of other birds it isn't doing a mean, low trick; it is obeying nature's commands; for the cuckoo is anatomically constructed in such a way that it can't 'set.' Eggs under a cuckoo would never hatch out."

Value of Copper Skewers

Roasts run through with skewers made of copper are not only juicier, tenderer and more appetizing than those baked in the ordinary way, but they require 30 per cent less time for cooking.

Such are the findings of experts of the home economics department of the University of California. This culinary discovery is explained on the ground that the copper serves to carry heat into the interior of the roast evenly and rapidly, while meat fiber alone has a very low heat conductivity. The experimenters assert that the more copper they used the less the meat lost weight during baking, thus giving an obvious economy of meat shrinkage as well as time and fuel.

Marriage Insurance

Marriage insurance is the latest form of investment in the Holy Land. A "bureau for brides and grooms" has just been opened in Jerusalem, and mothers in humble circumstances need no longer fear that their daughters will be condemned to spinsterhood owing to lack of dowry. Saving up for a dowry begins when a girl is born, or in her early childhood. When she reaches a certain age her name is entered on a "waiting list," and she is thus assured of suitors when she reaches marriageable age. The marriage bureau, which is conducted in accordance with Jewish rites, will prove to what extent romance can be placed upon a sound matrimonial basis.

Volta's Centenary

It is now nearly 100 years since the death of Volta, the father of every volt, voltage, and voltmeter in existence. There is a proposal to celebrate the centenary by an international exhibition and congress to be held at Como, Italy, some time between May and October, 1927. Wireless, undreamed of by the great scientist, is to be well represented.

SEAGULL IS COPIED IN NEW AIRPLANE

Novel Design Inspired by Study of Birds.

Garden City, L. I.—The flight of birds furnished the first inspiration that led man to fly. He then departed from the principles he learned from them and flew in ships of his own. Now the saga of flight has turned within its own wing spread and man is again looking to the birds.

Leonard W. Bonney of Flushing, L. I., has gone back to the original principles and by study of the flight of birds has developed and constructed an airplane that is revolutionary in design.

Bonney began his research almost two years ago. He studied many types and finally decided that the seagull embodies more principles that man could make use of than any other bird. He caught many gulls and tested their weight-carrying ability, their "lift" strength and measured their wing spread. Thus he came to the ideal proportions of a seagull.

Finally one came into his hands that measured up to the standards he had set. That bird was sacrificed on the altar of science. The others were set free. Casts were made of the body of the bird and drawings were made from the casts.

The new plane is now almost ready to fly. In a few days the designer will wheel his invention from the hangar, and before a crowd of skeptical mechanics and designers from nearby fields he will take his plane into the air.

The lines of the new plane incorporate entirely the lines of the unfortunate gull. By the pressure of a lever in the cockpit the wings may be folded back along the side of the fuselage, enabling the inventor to guide his ship into an ordinary garage. The folding is done by hydraulic means and the wings are locked either in flying position or folded with gun locks.

Quits Smoking 50 Years to Buy Stamp Collection

Philadelphia.—By denying himself tobacco for fifty years and thus saving ten cents a day, Daniel J. Gensemer of 207 West Central avenue, South Williamsport, Pa., has acquired what is regarded as one of the outstanding collections of exclusive American stamps.

In the extensive collection of the Williamsport man, who displayed it while attending the convention of the Patriotic Order Sons of America here, is to be found every historical species of stamps from the famous one which caused the Revolution to the latest product of the Treasury department.

Revolutionary and prerevolutionary era stamps are gathered together in his ample collection book with stamps issued by Rhode Island and Pennsylvania, by Rhode Island to raise money to build a bridge, by this state to enable a Methodist church to erect a new edifice.

Strange-looking money, including such novel early colonial currency as two-thirds dollars, also is embraced in Gensemer's unusual collection. He prides himself principally, however, not on the extensiveness of his collection, but on the fact that it is all American in nature.

Rossetti's Publicity Idea

A London paper recalls a story of Rossetti. The poet-painter one day told Browning that he intended, when funds ran to it, to buy an elephant. "Whatever for?" inquired Browning. "To clean my windows," answered Rossetti, and went on to explain: "When passers-by see him doing this they will ask, 'Who lives there?' and when they are told, 'Oh, a painter named Rossetti,' they will say, 'I think I should buy one of that man's pictures,' so they will come and ring the bell, and buy."

A Hallowe'en Party.

A delightful Hallowe'en party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Van Kleeck, 15 Apple street, on Saturday afternoon, October 30, in honor of their five grandchildren, Alice Winne, Cramer Winne, Donald Terry, Wanda Van Kleeck and Warren Van Kleeck, it also being the occasion of Warren's first birthday. Games were played and at 5:30 o'clock Miss Ottilia Riccobono played a march on the piano and the children marched into the dining room where the table was beautifully decorated in orange and black. The main feature of the table was a huge cake decorated with black kittens and yellow pumpkins with a large black cat on the top. Those present were: Phyllis Babcock, Jeanne Babcock, Mildred Ludwig, Norma Greene, Vivian Greene, Audrey Greene, Muri Greene, Hilda Winne, Janice Winne, Alice Winne, Cramer Winne, Naomi Libolt, Margaret Hinsdale, William Hinsdale, Frances Vreeland, Keith Vreeland, Roger Vreeland, Wanda Van Kleeck, Warren Van Kleeck, Ellen Foster, Charles Gobel, Jr., Donald Terry, Robert Winne, Edmund Golem, Theodore Golem, Mr. and Mrs. Lorin Baley, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Winne, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Terry, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Van Kleeck, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Van Kleeck, Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Van Kleeck, Mrs. Horace Post, Mrs. Ray Winne, Mrs. Howard Winne, Mrs. Ray Libolt, Mrs. Mary Libolt, Mrs. John Hull, Mrs. Edward Osterhoudt, Mrs. O. Marvelous Accuracy

Amazing records of accuracy in timekeeping are recorded in the Longines watch exhibit in the Palace of Foreign Exhibits at the Sesquicentennial International exposition, now being held in Philadelphia. The display is that of A. Wittnauer, of Switzerland.

The exhibit includes a dial watch which was accorded official government honors at the Teddington observatory, England; the Neuchatel observatory, Switzerland, and Geneva observatory, Switzerland. In each test the timepiece was awarded first prize. The error in compensation after six weeks of observation was less than four one-hundredths of a second.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

GIVE ATTENTION TO SMALL FRUIT

Small fruit plants, such as currants, gooseberries, raspberries and blackberries may be grown to perfection in the average back-yard garden in New Jersey. J. H. Clark, assistant professor of pomology at the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, states that the success of these gardens lies in careful cultivating and proper fertilizing.

Weeds and grass, he says, use large quantities of water and plant food, and must be hoed and pulled out. Frequent cultivation not only keeps weeds down, but helps to conserve moisture by forming a mulch of fine dust. A good substitute for cultivation is a layer of strawy material, at least a couple of inches thick after it is well packed down.

The fertilizer question has been more or less tinged with mystery especially to the suburban gardener, but is in reality very simple. The only three fertilizer materials likely to be needed and the form in which they can be most cheaply purchased, are as follows: Nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, acid phosphate; and muriate or sulphate of potash

On the average soil, the following amounts in pounds sufficient for 600 square feet or 100 feet of row, would probably give good results: Nitrate of soda, three pounds, acid phosphate, six pounds, and potash, two pounds. This material should be broadcast in the spring, before the end of May, care being taken that the material does not fall on the leaves if the plant has started growth.

The same quantity of fertilizing elements bought ready-mixed would undoubtedly be more expensive. Some good, fertilizers, which will probably be more expensive than the above, although this depends on local conditions, are. Barnyard manure, sheep manure, poultry manure, ground bone, dried blood, and tankage. If poultry manure is used, one bushel would be enough for a 100 to 150-foot row of small fruit plants. Very little fertility will be added by using wood ashes, wool waste or leather scraps. Coal ashes, soot and lime will not enrich the soil, but may improve its physical condition.

Using Bees in Orchard for Best Pollination

In using bees in orchards for pollination purposes, it is advisable to scatter the colonies as uniformly through the orchard as possible. Under favorable conditions the bees will travel a considerable distance to secure nectar. However, in bad weather, the bees do not venture more than 100 to 150 yards from the hive. An apiary placed on one side of the orchard will therefore not furnish as good a distribution as single hives scattered throughout the orchard.

The best way, according to the New Jersey College of Agriculture, is to distribute the bees so that the hives will be located not further than 210 feet from each other each way. This spacing will furnish approximately one hive of bees to the acre. In view of the average strength of beehives at this time of year, a smaller number than one hive to the acre would probably be insufficient in many cases. A hive of bees at blooming time should contain about three quarts of bees, numbering about 15,000 individuals.

Horticultural Facts

Bridge-grafting at the right time may save girdled trees.

Some of our most valuable fruit trees are also fine ornamentals.

The Faith, Hope, and Charity of the home garden, say horticulturists, are the ammonia, phosphoric acid, and potash to be found in complete fertilizers.

More than 20,000,000 pounds of explosives are used every year by farmers in blasting out stumps and bowlders, making ditches and for other purposes.

Plum pudding may be served this next Thanksgiving, as many plum orchards were visited by freezing weather early in April. But there still will be apple and cherry pie as these blossoms were not injured much.

• • •

The first peach and plum spray consists of one pound arsenate of lead to fifty gallons of water, plus three pounds rock lime or five pounds slaked lime, and should be put on when three-fourths of petals have fallen.

Crown gall in apple trees, which has been one of the most serious pests of the nursery for years, may now be controlled entirely by the use of an organic mercury compound of the same character as that which has been found successful in treating the root rot diseases of corn.

• • •

The orchard is not a one-year proposition, and must be cared for every year to get results. Trees poorly treated during an off year will surely show it in future crops.

Some Queer Beliefs Held About Cuckoos

The cuckoo has been a bird of mystery from time out of mind, and many strange superstitions still center round it.

A common belief is that whatever you are doing when you hear the cuckoo's note for the first time, you will do most often during the year.

Both Aristotle and Pliny remark that the cuckoo makes no nest, but lays her eggs in the nest of another bird.

It was once thought that one of the gods had taken the form of a cuckoo; and it was then a serious crime to kill the bird.

Years ago the cuckoo was associated with the character of the man whose wife was unfaithful. This belief appears to have come from the Romans, and probably entered English folklore through the Normans.

In many parts of England the old people still believe that the cuckoo is only a hawk changed for a time and unable to forget its old habits. They say this from the cuckoo's habit of perching—like hawks and owls—on posts and rails, or on anything upright and detached. And the old folks also say that if an unmarried man hears the cuckoo he will remain a bachelor for as many years as he hears the cuckoo repeat its call.

Clear Musical Notes From Acorn Strings

Following the introduction of the musical saw which is played between the knees and either tapped with a wooden hammer or vibrated by means of a bow, comes the announcements of the discovery among the older members of Indian tribes in Southern California, of a musical instrument made of acorns.

The acorns are tuned according to their size, and strung together in the order of the musical scale. To play the instrument the Indian musician takes one end of the string in his hand and holds each acorn in turn between his teeth. Then, using the other hand, he swings the string and pulls it taut, causing the acorn to vibrate between his teeth and produce a perfectly clear note.

A favorite instrument among them is the elderwood flute. A green stick is cut from the tree and left to dry with the leaves attached in order to draw the sap and prevent it from cracking. Then the wall of the flute is scraped thin in four places and holes bored by forcing in a glowing twig of the particular size required. Only four holes are made in each flute, and these placed at various distances so that each instrument has a different scale.

POULTRY

LAYERS SHOULD NOT BE TOO FAT

The skillful feeder tries to get his laying hens to consume the greatest amount of feed possible. That is, the greatest amount of feed which chickens will use in the production of eggs is the most profitable. Therefore, any stated amounts cannot be followed in all cases. You should feed what your hens will clean up without getting fat. As corn is a better heat-producing feed than the other grains, more corn should be fed during cold weather than on warm winter days.

Dry mashes should be kept before the fowls at all times, so that they can have access to them whenever hungry. This saves time and labor. Chickens do not have to grind the mash in their gizzards, so it can be eaten at any time the chicken feels inclined to do so.

It is estimated that hens which are kept confined eat from 70 to 100 pounds of grain and mash in a year. Light breeds such as Leghorns and like breeds will eat the smaller amount. This means that each hen will eat 3 to 4 ounces a day. A quart of dry mash mentioned above will weigh approximately one pound. A quart of scratch feed will weigh approximately 1½ pounds. Therefore, one quart of such a dry mash and one quart of such a scratch feed, would be enough to feed 10 hens of the larger breeds one day. Plymouth Rocks, Wyandottes, Rhode Island Reds and Orpingtons are considered the larger general purpose breeds. If you have a more or less number of hens you can figure from these amounts how much you should feed each day.

Late Molting Hens Are Best for Breeding Pen

During the molt hens lose all indications of production, including capacity, large, moist vent, good laying condition as indicated by some surplus fat in the abdomen, and bright head parts. Therefore, do not try and use these indications during the molt.

Early molters are usually the poor producers; late molters are usually the best producers.

One way to pick out the best hens for laying to use in the breeding pen would be to mark the late molters and breed only from them next spring.

Improvement cannot be made without selection. Now is the time to begin increasing your next year's egg supply by picking out the hens that have laid the latest in the season. These will usually be the late molters. Mark them and put them in a breeding flock next spring and breed only from them.—Extension Service, Colorado Agricultural College.

Shed-Roof House

Ten feet is about the right depth for a shed-roof house, with the front wall six feet high and the rear one four feet. Face the front wall south or southeast to get the direct sunlight, and leave it open part way down. Then have shutters covered with burlap, or curtains, to cover this opening in stormy or cold weather. In sections having severe winters, there should also be curtains to drop around the roosts on cold nights.

Poultry Facts

Young ganders make better breeders than do young geese.

Lice will kill not only pouits but also mature turkeys. Watch for them.

Poultry farming cannot be called poultry farming unless every branch of the work is touched.

Dampness is a foe to turkeys of all ages. Keep them in when it rains, and when the grass is wet with dew.

• • •

Already the poultry breeder is dreaming of the chicks which he will hatch next March and April and the wise breeder will give some thought to the hens and pullets from which he will breed next spring.

• • •

Green feeds are of great value to fowls and should be supplied to the flock through the winter months.

Arrange your market. If you have not already done so. Poultrymen who accept any old market they can get seldom make the highest profits that they are entitled to.

Most of the vegetables that can be stored through the winter make satisfactory green food for poultry. They include cabbage, beets, carrots, potatoes and mangels.

It is hard to find more profitable birds to keep on the farm than a flock of turkeys.

Poultrymen advise keeping the selected young roosters by themselves in preparation for the breeding season.

Much equipment is not essential to raise turkeys successfully, but considerable work is required in their care, especially while they are very young, care and continues being two important factors.

Do you want the earth with a fence around it? You may, in part, fulfill your wish by buying a well-located city or suburban lot. Real estate is the safest investment possible. Land cannot be burned, stolen or lost. Consult the classified ads in The Freeman for bargains in building lots, homes, etc.

News of the Day In Wall Street

New York, Nov. 5 (AP).—Subsidiaries of the U. S. Steel Corporation received orders for 180,000 tons of rails from various railroads in the last week of October, Illinois Steel getting 150,000 tons, Carnegie Steel, 25,000 tons and Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad 5,000 tons. Bids on 4,000 freight cars and 64 passenger cars expected to be asked shortly by the Missouri Pacific.

A slight seasonal decline in lumber orders last week from the week before is reported by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association while production and shipments seemed to have held up. Compared with a year ago the industry evidently is more active in all three factors. The hard wood industry is about on a par with the soft wood. Unfilled orders of 229 southern pine and west coast mills were 588,762,524 feet against 626,607,175 feet the week before.

The country's exports of galvanized sheets and plates for the first nine months this year are calculated at 145,762 short tons by the American bureau of metal statistics, Canada taking the largest amount, 28,571 tons with the Philippines next with 19,813 tons. Exports of these products from the United Kingdom in the same period were 564,733 short tons.

Wheel Aids Diver

Amusement and instruction are afforded in an eight-foot wooden water wheel for the swimming beach to aid the diver. The person sits or lies prone on top of the wheel, which is 18 inches wide, and, as it turns, slips into the water, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. A ratchet underneath prevents the wheel from going backward. A ladder and a platform are included in the apparatus which occupies not more than 120 square feet of ground. It is so constructed that fingers and toes cannot get caught.

A PINCH OF THIS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN Mother used to mix a dough
Or make a batter, long ago
When I was only table high,
I used to like just standing by
And watching her; for all the while
She'd sing a little, maybe smile,
And talk to me and tell me what—
Well, things I never have forgot.

I'd ask her how to make a cake.
"Well, first," she'd say, "some sugar take,
Some butter, and an egg or two,
Some flour and milk, you always do,
And then put in, to make it good,"
(This part I never understood
And often used to wonder at),
"A pinch of this, a pinch of that."

And then she'd say, "My little son,
When you grow up, when childhood's done,
And Mother, maybe, far away,
Then just remember what I say:
For life's a whole lot like a cake,
Yes, life's a thing you have to make
Much like a cake, or pie, or bread,
You'll find, my son," my Mother said,

I did not understand her then,
But now her words come back again.
Before my eyes the past appears,
A life of laughter and of tears,
And both the bitter and the sweet
Have made that life of mine complete,
The things I have, the things I miss—
A pinch of that, a pinch of this.

At first I thought of flour alone
I'd make my life, that wealth I'd own
And never care about the rest,
But things I lost that I possessed,
And things possessed, when life grew sad,
I never knew before I had;
In sorrow something would occur
Like—well, like memories of her.

And now I think I know the way
To make a life. As she would say,
Put in the wealth to serve your needs,
But don't leave out the lovely deeds,
Put in great things you mean to do,
But don't leave out the good, the true,
Put in, whatever you are at,
A pinch of this, a pinch of that.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE FLIGHT OF A CROW

IF YOU see a solitary crow in flight it is a sign that you will soon take a journey. The length of the journey will be long or short according to the length of the crow's flight. This superstition is found in many parts of the country and is merely a survival "auspication," to coin a word, or "auspicium" to use the Latin noun—the science of divination by the flight of birds so popular among the old Romans.

It is a crude, layman's sort of "auspication"; the Romans erected the art into a complicated mystery which had its beginnings, probably, in just such a simple and obvious matter as this divining of the length of a journey by the length of a crow's flight. The science was entrusted to a high priestly cast, the auspices, and the auspex divined not only by the flight of birds but by their cries, their entrails, etc. This old magical cult of divination of the Romans lingers not only in our superstitions but in our language in such words as "auspicious" and "auspices." That the crow is designated as the bird of divination in the superstition under consideration is natural; for the crow and the raven are of the same genus, so nearly related as to be one for practical and superstitious purposes and the raven in all mythologies is a mystic creature and has been viewed with superstitious awe from time immemorial.

Chrysanthemum Show at Burgevin's

Annual Exhibition at Pearl Street Greenhouses Where Other Beautiful Flowers Also Are Grown in Abundance.

If it were not for the annual chrysanthemum exhibit at the Burgevin greenhouses on Pearl street extension, the people of Kingston might remain in ignorance of, or forget, what a wonderful and beautiful industry has been built up in this city by the sons of the late Valentin Burgevin, florist, in a very literal sense of the word.

Remarkable as is the showing of prize "Mums" at the Burgevin Shop at the corner of Main and Fair streets, is only a suggestion of what one may see by visiting the greenhouses, and guests are welcome there every day in the week except Sunday. Going out Pearl street, just as soon as one comes in sight of the grounds of Valentine Burgevin's Sons, Inc., one sees a long stretch, through glass, of the most gorgeous and exquisite coloring, vieing with the most brilliant hues of an autumn sunset. On closer approach this proves to be one of the greenhouses almost entirely set aside to the "Caprice"—or as the workmen affectionately call them, "The Cap" family of chrysanthemums. They are the well-to-do, thrifty, handsome, home-loving varieties, short and stocky of growth and vivid and delicate of coloring that make such handsome potted plants for the home. They began blossoming in October and will continue until Thanksgiving time or later.

Some of the Aristocrats.

Then there are houses filled with the aristocrats of this family; maybe one might even call some of the most gorgeous blooms the "Crowned heads" of the chrysanthemums. They are perfect in color, form, texture and foliage. The latest arrivals among this aristocratic group are "Indian Summer", shading from rich mahogany to golden yellow; "Majestic", burnt orange; Frank Durant, light sunshiny yellow; "William Vert", coppery red; "Vermont", lovely pink.

Among the old favorites, none is lovelier than the President Lincoln, a true gold color, which has been popular for the last twenty years; while "Wells Late" and "Orange Queen" are also very popular. But besides these elegant blooms there are two houses set aside to the hardy, homey varieties, sort of Country Cousins, and loved accordingly. In all there are 20,000 chrysanthemums.

Other Floral Treasures.

While these autumnal blooms hold the center of the stage at present, they are by no means in the ascendancy among the floral treasures to be found at the conservatories. In fact so great has been the growth of the business even in one year, that two new green-houses were built this summer to house the plants that "rest" during the winter months.

The rose houses are ideal—in fact all of the houses are immaculate in all of their appointments and parts—filled with rose plants of most luxuriant growth, thousands of them, crowned with the most beautiful flowers that grow. There are several new varieties here. A stately, fragrant pink rose, "Briarcliff;" a deliciously rosy, deep red flower, "Mrs. F. R. Pierson;" a vivid yellow, "Gold Mine;" an almost orange flower, "Mrs. Alexander Dreaux," and a rosy colored bloom, "Roslandia."

Forests of Other Flowers.

Then there is a miniature forest of carnations, occupying two houses, 25,000 in this family, while 40,000 geraniums are growing as fast as possible to make many homes and gardens lovely a little later. A richer showing of cyclamen and begonias could not be imagined and this year the lovers of the azalea will be able to enjoy these Easter beauties as they have not done for the last two years when there was a shortage of these plants.

This by no means covers all of the varieties in which these greenhouses specialize, but it does give some idea of what a beauty center, as well as big business enterprise may be seen by a pleasant walk out on the Pearl street extension. Going backs to the chrysanthemum while they are now in their glory, there will continue to be rare blooms until the Christmas "Mistletoe" variety has faded and gone.

While it is a joy to walk through the green houses, it is an added joy if one may be escorted by George Burgevin, the senior member of the firm, whose love for the growing plants, his understanding of their wants and needs, his appreciation of interested service from his small peace-time army of helpers makes plain why these conservatories are the splendid success they are.

Sun's Effect on Earth

From the earliest times sunlight has been considered an important aid in the preservation of health. The ancient Greeks and Romans exposed their naked bodies to the sun in the open air to recruit mental and physical energies. Exposure to the sun's rays was always adopted by the physicians of those times as a remedy for many affections, "especially dropsy, inflammation of the kidneys and paralysis."

EL SALVADOR

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D C)

SALVADOR, the only Central American member of the newly elected League of Nations council, is the smallest American republic.

El Salvador, as the people themselves call their volcano-girded, forest-fringed country, lies on the west coast of Central America, a week's sail by coastwise steamer north from Panama.

It is the only country between Canada and Colombia without an Atlantic as well as a Pacific seaboard It has the densest rural population on the mainland of the Americas, with 1,400,000 people occupying an area no larger than the state of New Jersey.

Sailing along the Salvador coast, one's first characteristic view of the country is likely to include the volcano Izalco; and not unlikely it will be seen in eruption, for it sends out flows almost as regularly as the Old Faithful geyser of Yellowstone park sends out steam and water.

Seafaring men called Izalco "The Lighthouse of Salvador." To the Salvadorians this active volcano was known formerly as "The Safety Valve." They believed that its daily eruption assured their deliverance from severe earthquake and devastating lava flow. Then came the fateful day when Izalco ceased erupting, followed by those terrible earthquakes which in part demolished the capital, while another, heretofore dormant, volcano in a densely populated district rocketed forth a living stream of fire, which completely destroyed towns and fincus (estates), and for miles around covered that season's coffee crop with a fine lava dust.

If one enters Salvador through Acajutla, he will disembark in an open roadstead a mile out at sea and go ashore in a launch. From this he must be hoisted to the pier by a crane in a swinging chair.

A visit to a country estate in the near-by hills of the balsam coast is a most delightful experience. The house of such an estate will probably be set in a magnificent forest of giant balsam trees, whose trunks bear scars made by a pre-Columbian people, who tapped them then for the scented balm in much the same method employed today.

Balsam and Coffee.

The balsam tree, one of the most beautiful of the tropical forest, is cousin to the acacia. It grows rather isolated from its neighbors, even from its kind, its graceful branches high above the ground. Native to the west coast of Central America, it has been exploited only in Salvador, where it grows in a limited area of 750 square miles. It has of late years been introduced into Ceylon.

The method of the balsam tappers is primitive. Although the tree holds sap all year round, the tapping takes place only in the dry season. The outer bark is first cut with a blunt instrument, leaving the inner bark exposed, the flow of sap being stimulated by the application of a burning torch.

After several days the sap exudes slowly, but steadily. Cloths attached to the wounds, having become impregnated with the balm, are collected, thrown into boiling water, and subjected to heavy pressure. The crude balsam settles at the bottom and the water is then poured off.

The balsam, later clarified through the evaporation of impurities, is packed in metal cases for shipment to Europe and America, where it is used for medicinal purposes and as a basis for perfume. Every morning at such an estate a servant walks through the house waving a burning balsam branch. One lives in an atmosphere deliciously perfumed.

In the coffee tree, however, with its creamy flower and ruddy berry, rather than the rare balsam, lay the wealth of the planters. A few seasons ago Salvador's coffee output totaled 75,000,000 pounds. It goes mostly to France and the United States.

The Salvadorians should erect a monument to the Brazilian school teacher who, in 1890, brought the coffee tree there from his own country. The day he planted that first coffee tree in his garden he laid the cornerstone of Salvadorian prosperity.

The Salvadorian aristocracy is of Spanish and other European blood, many Britishers, Frenchmen, Belgians, Italians and Germans, having married into the old Spanish-Colonial families; but the masses are of Americ stock, with a Spanish admixture—that stock we loosely call Indian. Salvador boasts of having very little African blood

Often on the highway one meets a bronzed man or woman with those pronounced features and unique profile typical of the ancient Maya people whose temples, in jungle-clad ruin, are strewn from Honduras to Yucatan. Such place names as Chalatenango, Cuscatlan, Usulutan, and their like hark back to the shadowy past.

In the evening guests at country houses sit with their hosts under a brilliant canopy of stars, listening to alluring Spanish songs with guitar accompaniment and sometimes a serenade by the marimba players.

Life in the Country.

Most of the people live in the healthful uplands, the volcanic region. San Miguel, one of the highest of these volcanoes, has an altitude of 7,000 feet. Nearly the entire country is suitable for cultivation, the soil, consisting mainly of decomposed lava, being exceedingly fertile. This, and the fact that the majority of the people are land holders, accounts for the teeming population, the industry and contentment to be noted everywhere.

One of the oldest of the products, long the chief export of the country, is indigo. This native plant (iiquilite) supplied the dye of the ancient inhabitants. Sugar now ranks as an important export. In the days of the forty-niners, the greater part of the rum consumed by the California miners came from Salvador. Rice, like sugar, was brought from the Old world; but cacao, corn and tobacco, are indigeneous. Turkeys are kept in flocks in the tobacco fields to devour the worms and insects on the tender leaves of the plants.

Corn and beans are the staple articles of diet among the poorer classes. Corn cakes (tortillas), sturdy cousins of our hot cakes, form the plate on which the frijoles are heaped.

Coffee is prepared in the form of a strong extract, a teaspoonful or two being added to a cupful of hot milk. Among tropical fruits is the delicious nispero, the fruit of the tree Achras sapota which supplies the sap known commercially as chicle, the basis of chewing gum.

In the cattle country cattle are not only abundant, but seem to thrive with little or no attention. Beef is moderate in price. As in all tropical countries, meat must here be cooked and eaten the day the animal is killed.

Gold and silver rank high among Salvador's products. Up-to-date methods in gold mining were introduced twenty-five years ago, when an energetic American engineer obtained a property of high-grade ore and installed, with British capital, a most complete equipment. Later, acquiring a large tract of low-grade ore, he agreed to permit government students to complete their studies in mining and metallurgy at his properties.

In the Capital City.

San Salvador, the capital, with 75,000 inhabitants, is connected with the port of Acajutla by an English railway. It lies 65 miles inland and a little over 2,000 feet above the sea. The railroad crosses the territory devastated by the 1917 lava flow from the volcano, San Salvador.

The capital, even in the shadow of its smoking namesake, was quickly rebuilt. Although founded in 1528, it has quite a modern air. While one-story structures predominate, there are a number of splendid government and municipal buildings of reinforced concrete and several fine parks. Because of tragic lessons of the past, the cathedral is constructed of wood painted to resemble stone.

The main market overflows into the surrounding streets. Besides the native merchants, Chinese, Turks and Armenians are in evidence. Delicacies to the food fan, unfamiliar to us, are fresh-water shrimps the size of small lobsters, tortoise eggs, and moths.

City property pays a tax, but rural property pays nothing to the state and only a small sum to the municipal authorities. The main income of the state comes from the export and import duties, the exports exceeding the imports.
